British Columbia Labour Relations Board upholds dismissal of two workers over Facebook slagging of employer Believed to be first such case in Canada

Add Canada to the list of places where Facebook can be hazardous to your employment status.

Two workers at a B.C. car dealership were sacked for what they wrote about their employer and their managers on Facebook. And the B.C. Labour Relations Board has upheld their dismissal.

The incident, which occurred in Pitt Meadows just west of Vancouver, is believed to be the first such case in Canada.

"It's the first Facebook case that has made it to hearing at least," said Donald Richards, the lawyer who handled it for the employer, but he added there are likely plenty more to come.

"I think I was fortunate in the sense that I had pretty extreme facts."
DONALD RICHARDS, ATTORNEY FOR THE EMPLOYER, ON SOME OF THE FACEBOOK EVIDENCE USED

In this case, the two employees left few defamatory stones unturned. One or the other slagged their employer, accusing the business of being crooked, accused managers of performing homosexual acts together and mused about committing acts of violence against them. THE CANADIAN PRESS

SIU given names of Toronto 14

The names of 14 Toronto police officers have been given to the Special Investigations Unit as it probes injuries a man suffered during his arrest at the G20 summit.

A protester named Adam Nobody, 27, suffered a facial fracture below his right eye during his June 26 arrest at a demonstration at the Ontario legislature.

Images published in the Toronto Star Wednesday show Nobody being beaten with a baton by an officer in riot gear while being held on the ground by several officers.

The SIU resumed its probe last week after initially closing the case, saying there appeared to be an excessive use of force but the officers involved couldn't be identified.

Toronto police spokesman Mark Pugash said police investigators now have identified 14 police officers who were in the area.

He said information about the officers — who remain on the job — has been passed on to the Special Investigations Unit, which will look at whether criminal charges are appropriate. The Toronto Police Service is also conducting its own internal investigation to determine whether there are any disciplinary infractions under the Police Services Act.

The silence of the McGuinty Liberals

Watchdog uncovered emails that suggest plans to conceal changes under Public Works Protection Act

Premier Dalton McGuinty's officials plotted to keep the G20 law secret weeks before it was revealed that Toronto police believed they had the power to arrest anyone near the summit site.

That extraordinary disclosure, which dominated Thursday's debate at Queen's Park, is buried in ombudsman André Marin's 125-page report, Caught In The Act, on what he called "the most massive compromise of civil liberties in Canadian history."

"Your government conspired to keep the facts of the war measures in secret," Progressive Conservative Leader Tim Hudak lectured McGuinty in the legislature. "And then, when the ministry itself wanted to do a press release to explain this to the public, somebody — either you or your minister — gave the order to kill the press release."

"We were approached by the police to help them protect public safety. We responded quickly. In hindsight, I say we responded perhaps too quickly."
PREMIER DALTON MCGUINTY

On June 25, then-community safety minister Rick Bartolucci's ministry drafted a press release outlining the changes under the Public Works Protection Act. But the news release was never distributed because, according to Marin, "by the end of the day, the ministry had decided to scrap the idea of going public altogether" since there was only one media call on the five-metre rule.

"Who gave the order to kill the press release and keep this secret from the public?" demanded Hudak.

Baby girl born at 100 km/h

A baby girl and her 34-year-old mother are doing fine after the infant was born in an SUV on Highway 403 in Mississauga early Thursday morning.

The woman went into labour at home and her husband decided to drive her to the hospital.

After he got onto the 403, he suddenly heard a baby crying in the back seat and realized his newborn daughter had already arrived.

Police say the father called 911, pulled off the highway at Eglinton Avenue East and parked near Central Parkway East.

Both mother and baby were taken by ambulance to Credit Valley Hospital and are doing well.

29 charged as cops bust provincewide criminal ring

Police have charged 29 people after cracking an alleged criminal ring that operated across Ontario, making its own drugs and using boats to smuggle them into the U.S.

More than 300 officers fanned out across a large swath of the province and raided 34 homes and businesses Wednesday, seizing drugs, cash, weapons, vehicles and a boat.

"We have an organization that spans all of Ontario, from the west to the east," provincial police Det.-Insp. Ian Grant said Thursday. "It's not centred in any particular one area but rather uses the various different facets and knowledge of the people from those areas to move the product they have and produce it."

Police arrested 27 people Wednesday. Warrants were still out for two others Thursday. Charges include trafficking, conspiracy to possess and traffic, exporting illegal drugs and participating in a criminal organization.

Alleged activities

- Members of the group were involved in manufacturing ecstasy, crystal meth and marijuana and taking the drugs by boat into the United States over Lake Ontario and Lake Huron, police alleged.
- The group was also involved in identity theft, police said.
- Police said they also found a location that was making and putting out false IDs and credit cards.

Ontario to end year with 'solid growth': Duncan

Minister's trip on the heels of Financial Services Day in New York this month ● Political, banking leaders flocked to city to bolster T.O.'s profile

Ontario's finance minister says the province is on track for a deficit this year of $18.7 billion and still expects to end 2010 with "solid growth," despite a sharp slowdown in the economy over the past few months.

Dwight Duncan, who was speaking in New York Thursday, said the deficit will be in line with his fall projection and has been reduced sharply from the $26.7 billion that was forecast in the provincial budget last spring.

He said in an interview that the province also remains on course to match its revised projections for GDP growth of about two per cent in each of the next two years and will "meet or exceed our deficit reduction targets."

Duncan, who along with federal Finance Minister Jim Flaherty travelled to New York to drum up investment to help sustain Canadian growth, said Ontario is viewed as one of the world's most stable places to locate a plant or start a business.

He said a $1.4-billion Ontario bond issue this week sold out quickly, adding that Chinese banks were buying the bonds, helping to give Ontario a more diverse source of funding. Duncan also said he will continue to press for a national securities regulator, even though other provinces have said they might not join in, opting instead to create regional ones: "All the best advice we've got from all over the world says what Canada needs is one regulator."

Young workers are being left behind: Report

While economy has created more than 440K jobs since the recession, there are 228K fewer young people working

Canada's falling unemployment rate is hiding an unpleasant truth — tens of thousands are leaving the labour market in frustration, and none more so than young workers.

Last week's labour force survey for November presented a distorted hall-of-mirrors picture of employment — with the jobless rate falling to a two-year low of 7.6 per cent on the strength of little job creation.

For young workers in the 15- to 24-year-old category, the picture was even more distorted — the unemployment rate plummeted to 13.6 per cent from 15 with virtually no new jobs added. The mathematical disconnect comes about because Statistics Canada does not measure the number of workers against those who want jobs, but against those who are actively looking for work. There have been fewer of those.

Young people are leaving the labour force in droves. According to the agency, youth participation rate is the lowest in more than a decade.

Nancy Schaefer, president of Youth Employment Services in Toronto, calls it a "crisis" in youth unemployment, and is calling on governments to offer incentives for employers to hire young workers.

"A lot of young people are throwing in the towel, saying forget it. There's an inter-generational imbalance happening. You have a big bulge of baby boomers who have gotten into established positions entitled to three and four weeks' vacation and young people can't find jobs."
ECONOMIST BRIAN BETHUNE, IHS GLOBAL INSIGHT

YES, which has units across the country, sees a wide range of youth, from those who have never had a job to those who were laid off during the downturn. Many struggle, she says, but particularly those with less than a college or university education.

Statistics Canada cannot say for certain why more young people have been leaving the workforce, although analyst Lahouaria Yssaad notes that since the numbers are not as stark in the over 20-24 age sub-category, many in the youngest cohort may have gone back to school.

What is obvious, however, is that young people were disproportionately left behind during the recession, and one year removed from the official start of the recovery, they are still having a difficult time.

Chantelle, 20, of Newfoundland moved to Toronto in August because she had been told it was a city of opportunity. It was a decision she wishes she could take back because five months later, she has run out of money and has had to move into a homeless shelter.

"I'll take anything, but there's nothing out there," she says. "People say they'll call back, but they never do. I'm not going to stop looking though because I want to get out of here."

No grounds for arrest, lawyer argues

Two Toronto police officers who fractured the ribs of a disabled man had no reasonable grounds to arrest him and are therefore guilty of assault, a prosecutor says.

Even if constables Edward Ing and John Cruz believed they were acting lawfully when they arrested the man on suspicion of being drunk in public, they are still guilty, Philip Perlmutter told a judge Thursday in making his final arguments.

Testimony

- Moore testified the officers called him a "motherf---er" and a racist after he made an innocuous remark while passing by.
- The officers testified, however, that Moore was belligerent, appeared drunk and seemed in danger of being run over on Gerrard Street. They said he resisted arrest and they struggled to handcuff him, but no beating occurred.

Ing and Cruz are charged with assault causing bodily harm after they arrested Richard Moore on the steps of his Gerrard Street East rooming house in 2009.

Moore, a 59-year-old former offset printer with several medical disabilities, bled profusely and suffered two rib fractures during the arrest. Tests showed he had no alcohol in his blood.

Real or fake Christmas tree debate lights up

Debate comes as value of homegrown Christmas trees fall while artificial Christmas tree imports climb

Putting up a real Christmas tree is a cherished tradition, yet many people today wonder if it really is the "greener" choice.

The argument goes like this: You save a tree's life if you use a fake one.

But the Ontario Forestry Association claims that natural trees are the best eco-friendly choice because they are biodegradable. After you toss them out, they are mulched and used in municipal parks in the spring.

"You have to get beyond the emotional response" that this is killing a tree, according to Carla Grant, the association's executive director.

"People aren't just going out and cutting massive amounts of trees from forests," Grant says. "It's really an agricultural crop. Other trees are planted in their place. Making that parallel to farming and agriculture is important."

Grant also said these tree farms provide continuous habitat for wildlife and retain soil and water, preventing seasonal runoff.

John Bennett, executive director of leading environmental group Sierra Club Canada, simply calls the debate "a saw-off."

"Changing your choice of Christmas tree is probably not going to make a huge difference now or in the future," Bennett said.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Tree huggers

- The Ontario Forestry Association reports findings that show an artificial tree "would become a better solution to climate change" if it were kept about 20 years.
- However, the American Tree Association in the United States says the balance is tilted in favour of the fake tree after 10 years.

Ford, Drake lead newsmaker poll

Torontonians elected Rob Ford as mayor in a landslide, but will you also elect him Metro's newsmaker of the year?

His rival so far in this election is Drake. The Forest Hill rapper-singer is one of the hottest people in music, going platinum with his debut album, Thank Me Later. But it's not just a two-man race. The G20 protesters, Ka'naan and Dalton McGuinty have received support, and you can always vote your own way. Let us know. Voting ends Dec. 17.

Iran frees woman on death row

PM's wife Laureen Harper is heartened by Ashtiani's release

An Iranian woman who was sentenced to death has reportedly been freed after an international outcry, including pleas from Prime Minister Stephen Harper's wife.

The Prime Minister's Office circulated word of Sakineh Mohammadi-Ashtiani's release to reporters.

Laureen Harper hosted a discussion forum on Iranian human rights last month and signed a letter imploring the Iranian government to set Ashtiani free. "While today's news is encouraging, there is more that must be done to improve the lives of women in Iran," Laureen Harper said Thursday.

Ashtiani was sentenced to death by stoning after appearing on TV to confess to her husband's murder — a confession her lawyers say was forced. The sentence was changed to hanging after a massive international outcry, and she has been awaiting her execution.

Working mothers double: StatsCan

A new study has found the percentage of mothers who juggle a job and raise young children has more than doubled in a little more than three decades.

Statistics Canada says the employment rate among women with children younger than age three was 64.4 per cent last year, more than twice the proportion of 27.6 per cent in 1976. The agency says the employment rate for women with children has been steadily rising for three decades — almost doubling in 33 years.

In 2009, 72.9 per cent of women with children younger than 16 living at home were employed, nearly twice the rate of 39.1 per cent recorded in 1976.

67 Last year, 67 per cent of employed women worked in teaching, nursing and related health occupations, clerical or other administrative positions, or sales and service occupations. In contrast, 31 per cent of employed men worked in these fields.

"In general, the employment rate for women has followed an upward trend since 1976, when it was 41.9 per cent, although women are still less likely to be employed than men," says the study.

StatsCan said about 8.1 million women worked last year, or 58.3 per cent of working-age females — markedly less than the 65.2 per cent of men. And, while nearly three-quarters of employed women worked full time last year, they were still more likely than men to work part time.

‘Tori will never leave my heart’

The haunting words of the woman who pleaded guilty to her murder

Shocking details about the death of eight-year-old Victoria Stafford were revealed Thursday as a controversial publication ban was lifted.

Terri-Lynne McClintic pleaded guilty to first-degree murder in the girl’s death more than seven months ago, it can now be reported.

The plea had been under a sweeping publication ban since April.

The Supreme Court of Canada declined Thursday to hear an appeal of a decision to lift the ban, and the heartbreaking story of how Tori went missing outside her Woodstock school can now be told.

Some details, however, remain under a publication ban to preserve the rights of Michael Rafferty, 30, who was charged with first-degree murder and kidnapping alongside McClintic. His trial is not expected to get underway until 2012.

GEOFF ROBINS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Terri-Lynne McClintic arrives at court in Woodstock April 30. A publication ban that shrouded the case in secrecy was lifted to reveal her guilty plea.

After McClintic pleaded guilty April 30 she read a statement of her own.

McClintic said she was “dealt pretty low cards” in life and resorted to drugs.

She talked about the impression Tori made on her and the bond they formed.

“I am honoured to have been able to spend even a brief amount of time with such an amazing person,” McClintic said.

“Tori will never leave my heart. She’ll hold my heart in her hands until the day I die.”

Victoria went missing April 8, 2009, and her remains would not be found for three months.

That April day, as McClintic approached Oliver Stephens Public School, Tori happened to be the first child she saw.

McClintic told Tori she had a shih tzu named Precious, and Tori replied she, too, had a shih tzu and agreed she’d like to see McClintic’s dog.

McClintic was charged with kidnapping and accessory to murder, which was upgraded to first-degree murder. The kidnapping charge was dropped.

A life sentence with no chance of parole for 25 years is automatic for a first-degree murder conviction. McClintic may apply for the so-called faint hope clause after 15 years.

The little girl they will never forget

Here are excerpts from family victim-impact statements that were read in court:

Daryn Stafford, Tori’s 12-year-old brother

Tori was the most important person in the world to me, and the worst part about losing her … is I don’t ever get to see her again. I lost my only sibling. She was the closest person to me. But me and Tori could barely be apart for a weekend let alone a lifetime.

I would … give anything to get my baby sister back. I just love her more than anything.

Tara McDonald, Tori’s mother

It has been just over a year since the loss of my baby and I have tried many times to put to words how this has impacted my life.

My life will never be the same without Victoria. I think of her every single day and the pain never gets any easier to accept in my heart ... I don’t think that anyone can ever understand how the loss of a child impacts a person's life.

Rodney Stafford, Tori’s father

Terri-Lynne … I hope that during your sentence, you find peace with yourself and with God.

And just maybe one day I could learn to forgive you.

But for now, excuse me, I don’t. My little girl is gone.

China makes its move, sends envoy to Kim

Diplomacy finally breaks out two weeks after North Korea shells the South ◗ U.S. governor will visit, too

Diplomacy finally showed signs of life on the Korean peninsula Thursday, two weeks after North Korea shelled its neighbour.

China got off the sidelines and sent a top envoy to meet with Kim Jong Il, and an American governor whose visits have led to breakthroughs in the past announced a new trip.

As both Koreas continued to carry out military manoeuvres, regional powers balanced shows of support for their allies with attempts to negotiate a detente to avert a further escalation of tensions.

Four South Koreans died in the Nov. 23 attack on Yeonpyeong Island, the first to target a civilian area since the Korean War.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Kim Jong Il

Chinese State Councilor Dai Bingguo, Beijing's top foreign policy official, turned up in Pyongyang for "warm and friendly" talks with the North's leader Kim on Thursday.

The meeting — shown in photos with the two sharing smiles and handshakes — comes a day after the top American military officer slammed China for appearing unwilling to wade into the fray.

Meanwhile, New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson announced he would travel to North Korea next week.

"If I can contribute to the easing of tension on the peninsula, the trip will be well worth it," Richardson said.

Number of nurses up, but is it enough?

Canada's nursing workforce has grown in the last five years but still falls short of the level the profession achieved two decades ago, says a report by the Canadian Institute for Health Information.

The report shows that Canada gained more than 27,000 nurses between 2005 and 2009, bringing the total of regulated nurses to about 348,500 — a 9 per cent increase.

Over the same period, the country's population grew by 5 per cent.

But statistics show there are actually fewer registered nurses today relative to the population than there were 20 years ago. In 1992, there were 824 RNs for every 100,000 Canadians, compared to 789 per 100,000 in 2009.

Even so, the Canadian Nurses Association said it is pleased with the country's attempts to tackle the shortage. THE CANADIAN PRESS

KAYAKER PRESUMED DEAD AFTER CROCODILE ATTACK

An acclaimed outdoorsman who wrote movingly about testing himself against nature is presumed dead after a crocodile snatched him from his kayak while he led an American expedition from the source of the White Nile into the heart of Congo.

Two Americans being guided by 35-year-old South African Hendrik Coetzee on the gruelling trip could only watch in horror. They paddled unharmed to safety after the Tuesday morning attack on the Lukuga River in Congo.

The International Rescue Committee, which runs development projects in the Central African nation, helped evacuate the Americans to a nearby town, Ciaran Donnelly, the organization's regional director in Congo, said Thursday.

Coetzee's body has not been recovered.

Report blasts former federal integrity watchdog

It will be up to new integrity commissioner to decide if dismissed files should be reopened: Spokeswoman

New commissioner expected to be appointed soon

ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Auditor general Sheila Fraser speaks during a news conference after tabling the special report on the public-sector integrity commissioner in Ottawa Thursday.

The auditor general is calling for dozens of abandoned whistleblower complaints to be re-examined because the former public-sector integrity commissioner failed to do her job.

Sheila Fraser issued a scathing report Thursday on Christiane Ouimet's tenure as the parliamentary officer responsible for investigating reports by bureaucrats of government wrongdoing.

Fraser said Ouimet berated and harassed staff, leading to some former employees reporting health problems after dealing with her.

Ouimet went as far as compiling a 375-page binder of personal and professional information about an ex-employee, which she circulated within her agency and to three other government bodies, as well as to the private sector. The ex-employee said Ouimet was retaliating against him because she believed he had complained about her to the auditor general.

Ouimet retired from her position in October. She denied all the allegations in her interviews with the auditor general's office. She was given a chance to respond to the final report, but didn't.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Complaints

- The review was prompted by three internal complaints in 2008 and 2009.
- Fraser found that Ouimet had a reluctance to investigate files and didn't implement procedures on how to review complaints. The choice to dismiss many of the 86 complaints reviewed by the audit was made without enough work being done, the report found.

IVORY COAST ELECTIONS

U.S. threatens sanctions

The United States is threatening the president of Ivory Coast with punitive sanctions if he does not step down from power after losing the West African nation's elections last month.

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said Thursday that U.S. President Barack Obama delivered the warning in a letter sent this week to Ivorian President Laurent Gbagbo. Gbagbo has refused to accept the results of the Nov. 28 vote giving his opponent victory. Clinton said Obama warned Gbagbo of "consequences" if he does not step aside and peacefully transfer power to his successor. State Department spokesman P.J. Crowley said the sanctions could apply to Gbagbo and others "if he makes the wrong choice."

Three dead in Mexico violence

Gunmen blockaded the Mexican city of Morelia Thursday with cars and buses they stole from motorists and then torched in the second day of violence for the region that has left at least three people dead, including an eight-month-old baby. Morelia is located in the state of Michoacan.

Harkat denies charges, says he'll be tortured if deported to Algeria

A judge says there are grounds to believe Algerian-born Mohamed Harkat is a security threat who maintained ties to Osama bin Laden's terror network after coming to Canada.

The Federal Court decision Thursday could pave the way for Harkat's deportation to his native country.

In a separate ruling, Judge Simon Noel upheld the constitutionality of the national security certificate system the government is using to remove Harkat from Canada, which denies the person named full access to the evidence.

Harkat, a 42-year-old former gas bar attendant and pizza delivery man who lives in Ottawa, was arrested eight years ago on suspicion he was an al-Qaida sleeper agent. He is free on bail under strict conditions, and must wear a tracking ankle bracelet.

"At times, his testimony was simply incoherent, implausible if not contradictory."
JUDGE SIMON NOEL

Harkat did not offer credible testimony to the court, Noel said in his ruling on the certificate. "He has surrounded himself in layers of clouds in which he does not let any light come through," Noel wrote. Harkat denies any involvement with terrorism. He says he's merely a refugee who fled strife-ridden Algeria and worked with an aid agency in Pakistan before he arrived in Canada in 1995 using a false Saudi passport.

Haitian officials promise election vote recount

Decision follows rioting after celebrity eliminated from ballot Riots also plagued 2006 election

Haiti's electoral council will re-count the vote in the country's disputed election in view of election monitors and potentially the three leading candidates themselves, the council president said Thursday.

The decision follows rioting sparked by the announcement that government-backed candidate Jude Celestin and former first lady Mirlande Manigat were poised to enter a January runoff, while entertainer Michel "Sweet Micky" Martelly had apparently been narrowly eliminated.

Council president Gaillot Dorsainvil read a statement on Haitian radio saying that tally sheets would be re-counted with international observers and electoral officials.

"Given the evident dissatisfaction of many voters, protests and violence that followed the publication of preliminary results," the Provisional Electoral Council has decided to start a recount immediately, he said.

Dorsainvil said it would be overseen by a commission including the electoral council, domestic and foreign observers and the three main candidates if they wish. There was no immediate reaction from the campaigns.

Martelly's supporters again paralyzed streets in the capital on Thursday, piling earthquake rubble into barricades and squaring off with police and UN peacekeepers. On Wednesday, the candidate told his supporters to continue demonstrating, and a campaign manager said he would legally challenge the results. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fraud

- Nearly all 19 candidates, all of whom received votes on the Nov. 28 ballot, have said fraud tainted the results. A coalition of at least 10 candidates reiterated their call Thursday for the vote to be thrown out.
- The U.S. Embassy has also said the preliminary results appeared to conflict with reports from observers who monitored the count.

Afghanistan docs still hidden 1 year later: NDP

Documents caused Tories to shut down Parliament temporarily Jack Layton demands public inquiry

Remember when the fight to release documents on Afghanistan detainees raged daily in the Commons and pushed the Tories to temporarily close down Parliament?

Exactly one year later, the debate is barely mentioned and the documents are nowhere to be seen.

NDP Leader Jack Layton says his party is fed up, and is demanding again that the Conservative government call an inquiry into the treatment of war prisoners captured by Canadian soldiers.

Last December, the Commons voted to demand the release of documents by the government.

House Speaker Peter Milliken later ruled the government was required to release the documents, but he gave it a chance to find a solution that would satisfy national security concerns.

ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ NDP Leader Jack Layton.

What emerged was a special committee of Conservative, Liberal and Bloc Québécois MPs who would look over the files before a panel decided what would be released, but so far nothing has been made public. Layton says the Liberals and Bloc Québécois are merely helping the Conservatives shield documents that could be damaging to the government.

"They need to end the charade of their detainee-document deal with Mr. Harper because it's only keeping records hidden and standing in the way of a public inquiry," Layton said.

Bryon Wilfert, one of two Liberal members of the select committee reviewing the documents, said the NDP has no right to criticize a process it has chosen to boycott. "They decided not to be part of this. They have absolutely no idea how the process is working," he said in an interview.

Wilfert said the process is working well with "goodwill all round" and no evidence of deliberate stalling by the government.

And he promised the public will see the fruits of the special committee's labours eventually.

Sally Ann toy ban not national: Official

The Salvation Army says a decision by its Calgary branch not to hand out toys that it feels promote black magic, the occult and vampires is not a national policy.

Spokeswoman Capt. Pam Goodyear said the Calgary decision was based on a "significant" number of complaints from parents whose children have received those types of toys in their hampers in previous years.

But Goodyear said each branch makes the decisions on its own and she is not aware of this being a policy at any other location. Among the toys not being handed out are Harry Potter books, action figures and DVDs, along with Twilight merchandise. An unidentified volunteer recently spoke out in the Calgary media suggesting it was wrong that such popular toys were not being utilized by the charity.

Before clearing a blocked sewer service line outside a house or building call Ontario One Call

Is the sewer service line beyond the outside wall of your home or building blocked? If so, it is extremely important that you make sure no natural gas line intersects the sewer line before attempting to clear it. Using rotating or water jetting equipment to clear a blocked sewer line can damage a natural gas line and cause a serious gas leak. Ontario One Call offers free Natural Gas Sewer Safety Inspections on behalf of Enbridge. Inspections are offered throughout the Enbridge Gas Distribution service area, even if you are not a natural gas customer.

'Cyber war' alarms official

Skirmishes raged across cyberspace Thursday between WikiLeaks supporters and the companies they accuse of trying to stifle the group, with websites on both sides taken out of service or choked off by attacks.

The UN's top human rights official raised the alarm over officials' and corporations' moves to cut off WikiLeaks' funding and starve it of server space — something she described as a "potentially violating WikiLeaks' right to freedom of expression."

Navi Pillay also expressed surprise at the scale of the online attacks that have targeted major American financial players — in some cases denying access to their websites for hours at a time.

"It's truly what media would call a cyber war. It's just astonishing what is happening," Pillay told reporters in Geneva.

Cables revealing in their banality

Many of the leaked documents contain trivial political banter that was treated as confidential intelligence ◐ Often, information freely available online is order classified ◐ U.S. spent $9B on document security last year

WIKI LEAKS

While the recent leak of government documents onto the website WikiLeaks has revealed government secrets on such topics as Iran, North Korea and Yemen, the disclosure also unmasked another closely guarded fact: Much of what the government says is classified isn't much of a secret at all.

Days after U.S. President Barack Obama's inauguration, the White House received a classified message from the U.S. Embassy in Ottawa. It was a primer for the president's upcoming trip to Canada and it included this sensitive bit of information, marked confidential:

"No matter which political party forms the Canadian government during your Administration, Canada will remain one of our staunchest and most like-minded of allies, our largest trading and energy partner, and our most reliable neighbour and friend."

The document could not be made public until 2019 for national security reasons.

Such non-secrets have a cost. The more stuff the government classifies, the more money it takes to keep it all concealed. Most Americans can do little but take it on faith that those secrets are actually worth keeping. And advocates for open government say that when too much is classified, it makes it harder for the government to cry foul when legitimate secrets are leaked.

"The problem is, we've got a system that keeps way too much that is secret, and as a result we can't protect the real secrets nearly as well," said Thomas Blanton, the director of the National Security Archives at George Washington University. "And the stuff we really need to know is buried under a mass of trivia."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KHALID TANVEER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dutch prosecutors said they arrested a 16-year-old boy suspected of involvement in digital attacks that made it difficult to access several prominent financial payment websites earlier this week.

‘Want-to-be vampire’ faces assault charges ◐ Teen has told authorities that he’s a Satanist and that he is known by the nickname ‘Vamp’

Police in Alabama say a 20-year-old man who believes he is a vampire and goes by the nickname “Vamp” is accused of burning a V into a teenager’s forehead.

Evan Francis Brown has been charged with second-degree assault, a felony. Gadsden police detective Mike Hooks told The Gadsden Times that Brown heated a fork or a spoon on a stove and used it to brand a V into a 17-year-old’s forehead in October. Hooks says Brown tied the teen up, tricking him into believing they were playing a game.

Police say the teenager also had cigarette burns on his face and arms and had been beaten.

N.S. works budget to fall by $150M

$265M The largest share of the money is $265 million, for highway and road projects.

Nova Scotia’s planned spending on buildings, highways and other infrastructure will fall sharply in the next fiscal year as recession-battling stimulus dollars stop flowing.

Provincial Finance Minister Graham Steele provided a plan for fall spending today that estimates a capital budget of $560 million for 2011-12.

That’s down from $711 million in the 2010-11 budget, which included an injection of federal funds aimed at battling the recession.

Don't ask, don't tell repeal fails

Critics say White House priority was with tax cuts and nuclear arms treaty with Russia instead

Republicans blocked a last-ditch effort in the U.S. Senate to lift the military's ban on openly gay troops yesterday, dealing a major blow to gay rights groups and making it unlikely Congress could repeal the "don't ask, don't tell" law any time soon.

The 57-40 vote fell three short of the 60 needed in the 100-member chamber to overcome procedural hurdles to lift the 17-year-old ban. The rejection was a defeat for President Barack Obama, who campaigned promising to overturn the law and later called it one of his top legislative priorities for 2010.

The 1993 law bans gay troops from publicly acknowledging their sexual orientation.

- A repeal provision was included in a broader defence policy bill and passed earlier in the year in the House.
- Last week, the Pentagon unveiled a study that found two-thirds of troops thought repealing "don't ask, don't tell" would have little impact on their unit's ability to fight.

12 Italian cafes targeted in Montreal drug raid

Montreal police have targeted Italian cafes in a major operation aimed at dismantling a drug-trafficking ring.

Eleven people have since been arrested in response to the operation.

Police say the head of the drug ring had links with organized crime.

Those arrested will face charges of drug possession for the purpose of trafficking.

The RCMP, Quebec provincial police and Montreal police were involved in yesterday's operation, which targeted a dozen cafes.

Heroin, cocaine and contraband tobacco were all seized during the raids.

The arrests come as investigations continue into the recent firebombings of Italian cafes and pizzerias.

Jim Morrison pardoned

This is the end for the wild concert 41 years ago that left Jim Morrison marked with what today would be considered sex-offender status. Florida's Clemency Board, egged on by departing Gov. Charlie Crist, pardoned The Doors' long-dead singer Thursday on indecent exposure and profanity charges.

Some people who were at the Miami concert March 1, 1969, insist even today that he exposed himself, though Morrison's bandmates contend he was just teasing the crowd and only pretended to do the deed.

Morrison had received a six-month jail sentence — never served — and a $500 US fine for the 1970 convictions.

Protests rage as U.K. lawmakers triple tuition

Thousands of students hold rallies, sit-ins across the country, pressing government to reverse course

In Britain's worst political violence in years, furious student protesters rained sticks and rocks on riot police, vandalized government buildings and attacked a car carrying Prince Charles and his wife, Camilla, after lawmakers approved a controversial hike in university tuition fees.

Demonstrators set upon the heir to the throne's limousine as it drove through London's West End shopping and entertainment hub. Protesters who had been running amok and smashing shop windows kicked and threw paint at the car, which sped off.

Police said it was unclear whether the royals had been deliberately targeted, or were simply in the wrong place at the wrong time. Their Rolls Royce limousine was left with a badly cracked rear window and was spattered with paint.

Protesters erupted in anger after legislators in the House of Commons approved a plan to triple university fees to 9,000 pounds ($14,000 US) a year.

As thousands of students were corralled by police near parliament, some strummed guitars and sang Beatles songs — but others hurled chunks of paving stones at police and smashed windows in a government building.

Another group ran riot through the busy shopping streets of London's West End, smashing store windows and setting fire to a giant Christmas tree in Trafalgar Square.

The violence overshadowed the tuition vote, a crucial test for the governing Conservative-Liberal Democrat coalition, and for the government's austerity plans to reduce Britain's budget deficit.

It was approved 323-302 in the House of Commons, a close vote given the government's 84-seat majority.

TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY

Traffic flows after washout

Four-lane traffic is flowing again on the Trans-Canada Highway near the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary more than five months after flooding washed out a portion of the road.

The Saskatchewan government said the westbound lanes near Maple Creek will be open over the winter months. About 175 metres of those lanes and 75 metres of the eastbound passing lane were destroyed in heavy flooding June 19.

Temporary repairs allowed one lane of traffic to move in each direction and work to rebuild the westbound lanes began in September. But crews will have to complete paving and finish reconstruction of the eastbound lane in the spring.

Even a little social smoking — or inhaling second-hand smoke — could be enough to block your arteries and trigger a heart attack, says the newest U.S. surgeon general's report on smoking. # Canada skirting Kyoto talk

Developing countries say rich nations should take on more gas emission cuts when accord expires in 2012

The future of climate change negotiations lies with the Copenhagen Accord, Environment Minister John Baird said in comments that call into question reports of progress at the United Nations talks in Mexico.

With talks reportedly entering a delicate phase as the two-week meeting comes to a close, Baird said not a word about demands that rich countries take on additional commitments under the 1997 Kyoto Accord. Canada, Japan and Russia are among the planet's major emitters who are refusing to commit to further emissions under the Kyoto Protocol after 2012, one of the major demands of the developing nations.

ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Walking away from the Kyoto program will demonstrate to the world that "a culture of impunity" reigns among rich nations, said Jose Endundo Bononge, environment minister in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

Green fluff

As some 15,000 delegates, environmentalists, business leaders, journalists and others met at this Caribbean resort, carbon dioxide and other global warming gases, byproducts of industry, vehicles and agriculture, continued to accumulate in the atmosphere, barely abated by modest emission reductions undertaken thus far.

- Scientists say temperatures could rise by as much as 6.4 C in this century without deeper cuts, leading to serious damage to coastlines, human health, agriculture and economies in general.
- The annual negotiations under the UN climate treaty will not produce an overarching deal to slash emissions of global warming gases.
- From the start, the talks focused instead on secondary areas, including setting up a "green fund" to help poorer countries cope with global warming.

'ECOCIDE' THREATS

The Bolivians led a group of dissident, left-leaning Latin American governments at the annual UN talks, and have complained in particular about closed consultations limited to a select number of delegations.

Bolivia President Evo Morales echoed that complaint in a speech, raising questions anew about whether his Bolivarian coalition will block consensus on items before the assembly. Citing families deprived of water because of drought, and islanders losing homes from seas rising from global warming, Morales said if governments move away from mandatory emissions reductions, "then we will be responsible for 'ecocide.'"

Apartments to rent harder to find, study says

High home prices keeping first-time buyers in rental units ◐ Influx of new renters reduces vacancy rates

Apartment vacancy rates in the Greater Toronto Area are tightening as economic uncertainty means potential first-time buyers are staying with rental accommodation, according to a new report.

Average apartment vacancy rates decreased sharply to 2.1 per cent compared with 3.1 per cent a year ago, according to a report released Thursday by the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp.

"At the same time, the inflow of new renters increased due to rising immigration and more job opportunities," CMHC said.

CMHC says the current vacancy rates are producing "some of the tightest conditions over the past 10 years."

Strong demand for renting has meant a 30 per cent decrease in the number of vacant units.

"The most influential underlying force was the marked slowdown in demand for buying homes."

Higher home prices and tighter mortgage restrictions have priced some homebuyers out of the market.

The recession was also tough on the youth labour market, which is the most likely to rent, according to the CMHC.

"The outflow of renter households into home ownership has been restrained by the increased presence of underemployment," said the CMHC.

The average rent for a two-bedroom apartment increased by 1.8 per cent over last year to $1,123.

Nationally, vacancy rates decreased at a more moderate level, to 2.6 per cent from 2.8 per cent.

The list also includes New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg, CNN founder Ted Turner and film director George Lucas.

The fallout

- Household debt has risen to 145 per cent of disposable income as Canadians have taken advantage of super low interest rates to purchase homes and other consumer items on credit.
- If interest rates rise, or employment falls, many could find themselves in over their heads, the bank says.
- A shock could also impact financial institutions as households lose their ability to make debt payments.
- The potential problems for Canada all stem from external sources.

Recovery slowing

The risks of another global financial and economic shock is rising, says the Bank of Canada, and Canadians may be in poor shape to deal with the fallout.

In a decidedly gloomy report of global developments since the summer, the central bank said Thursday in its December issue of the Financial System Review that both the global and Canadian economic recoveries are slowing.

But the main risk to the recovery is the growing seriousness of Europe's sovereign debt crisis, along with the inability of nations to confront the hard choices needed to scale back global trade imbalances that were a key contributor to the crisis.

Canadians won't be spared another shock, the bank said, because rather than consolidate their finances during the recent and current period of tough economic times, they have continued to take on debt and stretched their finances.

Eminem also had the top-selling album with Recovery.

Rapper Eminem and the addictive Angry Birds iPhone app topped iTunes’ Canadian charts in 2010, while a charity single and album for Haiti relief efforts, and The Suburbs by Montreal band Arcade Fire were also among the best-sellers.

Apple did not disclose specific sales figures.

The hit game Angry Birds was the top paid iPhone app, the limited version was second on the free app chart, and it was also the third most popular iPad app to buy.

The game’s maker, Rovio, said recently that the game has been purchased more than 12 million times since going on sale in December 2009, and the free versions have been downloaded more than 30 million times.

E-book readers snapped up iBooks, making it the most popular free iPad app, followed by Google Mobile App, Movies by Flixter, Solitaire, and Google Earth.

The top paid iPad apps were Apple’s word processor Pages, GoodReader, Numbers, and Living Earth HD — World Clock and Weather.

▶ Investment banker Steve Losty headed the top Movember fundraising team on the planet, narrowly shaving rival Australia for first place.

5 MINUTES WITH: STEVE LOSTY

The CIBC investment banker out-'stached the competition by corralling his team — and, by extension, Canada — to raise the most money for Movember.

Congratulations! That's got to feel good.
Yeah, I mean this is the third year we've done it and CIBC is pretty charity-focused, but this was a relatively new one for us. I think it opens up the idea of charity to that 25- to 35-year-old male who's probably not a big United Way giver, for example, but who would get behind something like this.
What do you think propelled your team to first place?
I think it's just numbers. We had something like 260 people participating so the more people you get, the more the fundraising dollars go up. Rick McCreary was our top fundraiser and a lot of his fundraising was through the clients he's worked with over the years who are probably right in the demographic of those affected by this disease.
How did you rally everyone on your team to the top?
Harassed them (laughs). We've got some great, creative folks in our marketing group that sent out some funny weekly updates. And a big thing on Bay Street generally is rankings; who's raising more money than who. So we did have a lot of friendly competition as well, and that was a good way of motivating people to raise more.
Be honest: Which one of you grew the best 'stache?
You know, Rick's was pretty good. We haven't actually awarded the best 'stache, we'll probably do that later.
How did your 'stache stack up?
It wasn't that great. I got hooked up to Canada AM last week for the shave down, so I had to get it shaved off on TV, which was pretty embarrassing. All for a good cause, though.
Best part of the experience for you?
The best part is knowing we raised a lot of money for a good cause and played a part in growing the campaign. Last year it raised $8 million in Canada and this year it looks like it's heading toward $21 million.
Any plans to go to (second-place) Australia just to gloat?
(Laughs) No, not yet. I think some of the Australian firms like Macquarie have started to step it up into corporate dollar matching because I think they were a little irritated not having raised the most. ● JORDANA DIVON

Adding colour to politics

Letters & Tweets

We asked: What do you think about Don Cherry getting involved in politics?

TORONTO. Don Cherry involved in politics? If Don had brains he would really be dangerous. He doesn't like French hockey players, Russian hockey players and Swedish hockey players all being "unCanadian." Who does he like? Anyone with pockets full of cash, and the little guy, or pinkos as he calls us, are we not supposed to have an opinion that differs from his? The word democracy is not in his vocabulary.

To remind Don, a little man called Tommy Douglas was voted the most famous Canadian by Canadians and Don, you weren't even close on the ballot. Pinko beats out sour Grapes. J. CONNELLY

TORONTO. The taxpayers of Toronto were offended by seven years of inefficiency and abuse on our quality of life by a left-leaning council (a.k.a. left-wing pinkos). Don Cherry gave a three-minute speech, which has no legislative impact and the sensitive residual left-wing councillors are offended? Get over it.

I was at city hall and the crowd laughed at Cherry's speech and moved on. The last council did harm to us, Don Cherry's speech has not. And I ride a bicycle! MICHAEL N.W. BAIGEL

Metro Minute at a barbershop

All this talk about Movember has us thinking about barbershops, the last places on Earth where the mid-20th century is still flourishing. While many of our menfolk have abandoned the swirling poles and real talk for chi-chi salons with one-monikered stylists, there remains a legion of loyal customers who keep guys with names like Gus and Bob in business. Depending on your follicular situation, there's a barber out there for you. So cancel your appointment with Laurent and check one of these guys out. Sean at Fade Away Barber Shop (532 Oakwood) has been in the trade for two decades (he's 35!), while Ralph (56 Wellesley St. W.) was practically raised among the scissors. ● JORDANA DIVON

DO YOU THINK SNOW TIRES SHOULD BE MANDATORY?

Josh Awerbuck
TORONTO
No. I have all-season tires and they work fine for me. People need to learn how to drive better in all conditions. Snow tires are a luxury.

Leone Martin
TORONTO
Yeah, because you see all these accidents. But even if they become mandatory, that won't guarantee that there will be no accidents because people need to update them, too.

After 28 years, Tron nets Bridges again

Actor impressed, intimidated by the technology used to let him play his younger self ◐ Tron: Legacy pushes boundaries like its predecessor

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Although 28 years have passed between Tron and the new Tron: Legacy, it didn't exactly feel that way for star Jeff Bridges. "It's like we had a long weekend and we're just back doing the same work. It's crazy," he says. Yet Bridges says making the decision to return to the computerized world of Tron wasn't easy — but then no decision is for him.

"I have a lot of hesitation making any kind of decision in my life. I'm really slow at it," he says. "My mother says that I have abulia. It's like a mental disorder, I guess — having difficulty making decisions."

One of the factors aiding Bridges' indecision was the technology used in the new film, which like its predecessor pushes the technical boundaries of filmmaking. "With this one, I thought, Oh God, are they going to pull it off?" Bridges says.

The most high-profile technical trick on display involves Clu, one of the two characters Bridges plays in the film — only Clu looks like the actor did decades ago. The filmmakers used the techniques that made Brad Pitt age in The Curious Case of Benjamin Button to rejuvenate Bridges. It's something that leaves Bridges' mind blown, to put it lightly.

"I thought we could use a modern-day myth about the challenge of technology and how we're going to surf that particular wave." JEFF BRIDGES, ON THE MESSAGE THE FILM CARRIES.

"It's wild to be able to go back there and play different ages. It opens up a whole world," he says. "And they'll be able to combine actors. I don't know quite how I feel about this, but that's coming up, too. Just to say, you know, 'Let's get Boxleitner and Bridges, and put a little Brando in there. See what happens.' And then they can hire some other actor to drive that image that they've created. It's getting pretty crazy."

So does that mean he'll now be competing with younger co-stars like Garrett Hedlund for roles? Because certainly they'd take issue with that. The idea makes Bridges laugh. "No, I haven't thought about that," he says. "That's funny."

Of course, Bridges sees Tron: Legacy as more than just a movie, even a technologically groundbreaking one.

Where's Oscar?

Life changing. Jeff Bridges' Academy Award win earlier this year for Crazy Heart has certainly changed his life, but he's just not sure how yet. "I think it has, but I haven't really figured that out entirely, because about a day after the Oscars I went right to work on True Grit," he says. As for where to put the little gold guy, the preternaturally playful actor had one idea that has yet to come to fruition. "They didn't really do this, but I thought it would be fun. I was going to ask my wife or my kids or whoever, 'Take this and hide it at different spots in the house. We can discover it,'" Bridges says with a grin.

News in brief

Howard Stern says he's staying with SiriusXM Radio. The loose-lipped shock jock announced Thursday that he has signed a new five-year contract. No other terms were initially disclosed. Stern had been locked for months in stormy negotiations as his original five-year deal, worth $500 million, neared its end just days from now. Earlier this week, he declared in salty terms on his radio show that he would not accept a pay cut if he stayed.

Timberlake gets geeky

- Actor-musician loved getting back to his childhood favourite
- Enjoyed working with Aykroyd

▶ Justin Timberlake does the voice of Boo Boo in Yogi Bear, which comes out next Friday.

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Justin Timberlake is quickly learning that to properly express how he feels about his turn as soft-spoken sidekick Boo Boo in the new Yogi Bear movie, he'll have to let his nerd flag fly.

"At the risk of ruining my social life," he begins cautiously, "I would entertain my parents by imitating Scooby Doo and Boo Boo – all the cartoon voices. You know that about me now, which is weird."

After impressing critics earlier this year in The Social Network, Timberlake was happy to take on something a little simpler.

"I did a film about the birth of social networking, and it drove me crazy even being a part of that movie," he says. "It's way beyond my brain span."

The combination of live action and animation in Yogi Bear means Timberlake's job was all in the recording studio, and it hasn't escaped him that he and Dan Aykroyd, who voices Yogi, had the easier job in the film, compared to his flesh-and-blood co-stars.

"Anna (Faris) and Tom (Cavanagh), they had way harder jobs than we did," he says. "I've never worked in that way where you're looking at tennis balls or leaves as reference points."

The key to nailing Yogi and Boo Boo's chemistry was to go against the traditional process for animated films, in which the actors come in one by one to record their parts. Instead, Timberlake and Aykroyd worked together.

"We had two or three sessions together because we really did see this as a Batman and Robin — if you will — sort of duo," Timberlake says. "It really made a difference with the rhythm of the banter between Yogi and Boo Boo. It was a very cool collaboration. We had a lot of fun doing it."

But while his job consisted of hanging out in a recording studio goofing off with Aykroyd, there was still actual work to be done.

"Getting the voice of Boo Boo, I had someone on hand with the old '60s and '70s cartoons and I would sit there and listen to it in between takes and before we would start our sessions," he says. "It would take me 15 to 20 minutes to really get — this is all really boring, geeky vocal stuff — but to get your palate to the right level of the character. So after the first 20 minutes, I would go back and re-record everything we'd done in the first half hour because you just get in the pocket of the tone and inflection."

Timberlake stops, shaking his head. "I'm really killing any sort of coolness I had before I got here," he says.

Bale gets energized for his role as a real-life live-wire in The Fighter

Actor plays boxer/trainer Dickie Eklund who struggled with a crack addiction Movie brother Wahlberg helped Bale get the accent down

▶ Christian Bale, right, and Mark Wahlberg star in The Fighter, which deals with the real-life story of Mickey Ward.

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Christian Bale has dropped dramatic weight for roles before — most notably in The Machinist and Rescue Dawn — so shedding pounds for The Fighter, in which he plays manic boxer Dickie Eklund, who wrestled for years with a crack addiction, wasn't necessarily new territory.

This time, though, Bale's been watching his tongue. "Usually I always say, 'Oh, I do a lot of coke whenever I lose weight,'" Bale says. "I'm not sure if it's so funny for this movie to say that."

In reality, he got thin by running — and running and running.

"I was just running like crazy. I could just run for hours on end and I felt really healthy," he says.

"If I'd done it exactly like Dickie, we would have needed subtitles, probably."
CHRISTIAN BALE, ON GETTING THE ACCENT FOR DICKIE EKLUND

Building up that stamina was important to playing the fast-talking, live-wire Eklund. On screen, Bale is a perpetual motion machine, Dickie's out-of-control energy threatening to derail the boxing career of younger brother Mickey Ward (Mark Wahlberg).

Bale found a great resource in co-star Wahlberg, who also produced the film, especially since Bale needed to master Wahlberg's native Boston accent.

"Mark was a great deal of help," Bale says. "He would never say anything, but he'd just get a certain look on his face when you said something, that you just knew that wasn't it."

Of course, he also had Eklund himself to rely on, as the man he was playing was present for much of the production, though he insists he couldn't completely mimic his real-life counterpart.

"Dickie's got his own thing going on, you know? He calls it 'Dickie-nese,'" Bale says. "If I'd done it exactly like Dickie, we would have needed subtitles, probably."

But having Eklund around while trying to recreate his story wasn't always easy, Bale admits.

"There were a couple of times I had to physically restrain Dickie from going and landing one right on (director) David (O. Russell)," Bale says. "There were some script changes going on, and Dickie wasn't initially totally understanding that sometimes in putting a whole life into two hours, a little bit of license has to be taken and mixing things up. He wanted everything initially to be absolutely how it was portrayed. And if it wasn't, there was a couple of times he would say, 'I'm gonna go and I'm gonna hit him.'"

But as for the finished product, Eklund's reaction to the film says everything. "After we showed him the movie, he didn't punch any of us," Bale says with a laugh.

Taymor happy with her odd casting choices

▶ Julie Taymor and Helen Mirren from The Tempest.

The first thing Shakespeare fans will notice about director Julie Taymor's The Tempest is that the angry, exiled old magician Prospero is now a woman — and not just any woman. But Taymor, always an envelope-pusher, insists casting Dame Helen Mirren in the lead role — making it Prospera — wasn't done for attention.

"All I knew was that Helen could play Prospero and there'd be no problem. And that's where I started," Taymor says. "This idea of turning Prospero into Prospera wasn't the instigation for doing it. It was, 'Who do I want to play Prospero?' And there she was. And the play lent itself to that."

The play also lent itself to the medium of film, Taymor found.

"I love directing Shakespeare on film," she says. "I have that extra additional camera to get in there when it's supposed to be a soliloquy. This I think is a boon and an enhancement for the audience of now that is very impatient with comprehension, with listening."

And she's hoping dazzling visuals and locations will help win over the impatient and Shakespeare-averse.

Among the talent-heavy cast supporting Mirren are Chris Cooper, Alan Cumming, Alfred Molina, Djimon Honsou and British comedian Russell Brand. While the star of Get Him to the Greek might seem an odd fit for Shakespeare, Taymor insists his was the easiest role to cast.

"There's nobody who is the contemporary court jester — in the way that Shakespeare understood the court jester — better than Russell," she says.

GREAT KIDS' FILMS OF THE '80S

In Focus

CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Once upon a time Disney had a corner on the kid's action adventure market. Sunday at six was reserved for the Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color and for a couple of hours once a week, movies like Race from Witch Mountain, Kidnapped and Treasure Island mixed plucky kids, mild action, exotic locations and lots of adventure.

The genre hasn't gone away. New movies like this weekend's The Chronicles of Narnia: The Voyage of the Dawn Treader still give kids a thrill ride, but I still get a nostalgic kick out of older, simpler action adventure flicks.

Though it wasn't a Disney film, The Goonies breathes the same air as Walt's kids classics. The adventure begins when a group of kids calling themselves The Goonies find One-Eyed Willy's treasure map. Sprinkle in some crazy inventions, a baddie played by Throw Mama from the Train star Anne Ramsey, a title track by Cyndi Lauper and Spielberg-esque storytelling and you have one of the best loved kids romps from the 1980s.

Speaking of Spielberg, without his ET we wouldn't have had Flight of the Navigator. After ET's successful mix of kids and aliens a whole slew of movies tried to cash in on that formula. The story of a 12-year-old boy who disappears, only to return eight years later without having aged a day had it all: intelligence, a glib navigational computer and a cameo by Sarah Jessica Parker as a NASA orderly with punk rock pink hair.

Two other early '80s fantasy adventure films feature wild creatures and magical lands, a perfect combo for a classic adventure.

In The NeverEnding Story, a young hero must save his country, Fantasia, from something even worse than an evil king. He must stop a creeping wave of nothingness. It may be the most existential kids movie ever, but woven into the fabric of the story are cool characters like the Rockbiter and Gmork the evil wolf.

Perhaps the best, although most underrated fantasy film is 1982's The Dark Crystal. Directed by Muppet master Jim Henson, the film sees a Gelfling setting off to find the missing piece of a magical crystal in order to restore to his world. A minor hit when it was released, this masterful kid's movie is finally getting a much deserved sequel, The Power of the Dark Crystal, scheduled for release in 2011.

Reese has tough time being quiet

NED EHRBAR

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

▶ Reese Witherspoon and Paul Rudd star in How Do You Know, which opens next Friday.

Romantic comedies are nothing new for Reese Witherspoon, but her role in James L. Brooks' new film, How Do You Know, presented some interesting challenges. "This character is a woman who has a hard time conveying her emotions — and doesn't even really want to talk about things," Witherspoon says of professional softball player Lisa.

"The biggest challenge for me was she's not verbal, and I'm used to playing really talkative characters and women who speak about their relationships and talk about love and dynamics and boys with their girlfriends," the actress explains.

"And she doesn't really have that, like, Greek chorus of women around her. So that was a new character for me, and really interesting. And I had to meet a lot of women like that."

The film follows Lisa as her affections pinball between a commitment-phobic baseball player (Owen Wilson) and an honest-to-a-fault businessman (Paul Rudd).

"It's a tough job, ladies, but someone's got to do it," she says of working with Wilson and Rudd. "How lucky am I to work with two of the most talented, funny, attractive, hysterical men?"

On set, Witherspoon found her own feelings mirroring that of her character, making it hard to choose between the two costars.

"Every time we'd do a scene with Owen I'd get really attached to Owen, and then I go and do scenes with Paul and I felt like I was cheating on Owen," she says.

Though there are only a handful of scenes in the film in which Lisa is on the field, Witherspoon says Brooks wanted to get every detail right when it came to softball and how a lifelong athlete operates. And for Witherspoon, that meant meeting even more women.

"I got to work with all these Olympians, softball players," she says. "I'm not really that athletic. So I did that for four months, three hours a day." Certainly that much training must have had some benefit, right? Wrong. "I'm still not any good at softball," she admits.

The Tourist should have stayed home

The Tourist
Genre: Action/Thriller
Director: Florian Henckel von Donnersmarck
Stars: Johnny Depp, Angelina Jolie and Paul Bettany
●●

After his blistering 2007 drama The Lives of Others, anytime German director Florian Henckel von Donnersmarck makes a movie, this critic stands at full attention. Shame then that his splashy Hollywood debut The Tourist is so crushingly inert, a pretty, high gloss dud that exhibits little of the sizzle that made Others such a visceral ride.

Johnny Depp dials it down as a nebbishy math teacher vacationing abroad, who brushes up against (there are worse fates) smoldering British she-spy Angelina Jolie and gets himself deeply mired in a convoluted plot involving Russian baddies and government secrets all set against the always gorgeous, cinema-friendly backdrop of Venice. It's a romantic action caper flick that has no fire lit under it, coasting on its star power and offering few — if any — genuine thrills or intrigue.

Henckel von Donnersmarck's direction is klutzy, trying to emulate the fish out of water hijinks of Hitchcock romps like North By Northwest and jamming the action into an exotic (for the average American anyway) and romantic European framework. It simply never takes off and if anything Depp and Jolie's familiar presence distracts, with Depp especially bland and uninteresting.

Still, as flawed as it is, there is a certain meandering fascination to the picture and it might actually play better on the home screen on a lazy Sunday afternoon, when expectations are nil and interrupted by the odd nap.

● CHRIS ALEXANDER

The Chronicles of Narnia: The Voyage of the Dawn Treader
Genre: Fantasy
Director: Michael Apted
Stars: Georgie Henley, Ben Barnes
●●½

At 113 minutes, the third big-screen adaptation of C.S. Lewis's Narnia book series may be the franchise's most adroit, but the brevity is not without its cost. When young Lucy and Edmund Pevensie (along with their perpetually annoying cousin) are sucked back into Narnia, they set forth on an island-hopping quest for magical swords that will save the fantastical world from doom. Simple enough, but with seven sabers and a schooner-load of adventures to be had, director Michael Apted overloads the film by attempting to fit everything in, stifling its momentum. As such, the story is harshly frantic and shallow even if its effects and chatty creatures entertain the kids. ● STEVE GOW

The King's Speech
Genre: Drama
Director: Tom Hooper
Stars: Colin Firth and Geoffrey Rush
●●●●●

You can't make this stuff up, this engaging, period bro-mance between the soon-to-be King George VI (Colin Firth) and a commoner (Geoffrey Rush) who is a speech therapist on the eve of the Second World War. But apparently it happened. The Duke of York, the second son of the late King George V, was saddled with a career threatening stammer that might not have mattered if the radio not just been invented or if his brother Edward hadn't just abdicated the throne to marry Wallis Simpson, thrusting him into the top job. Now he is expected to address a nation on the verge of war. Both rollicking fun and a nail-biter.

● ANNE BRODIE

Winds of Heaven
Genre: Documentary
Director: Michael Ostroff
Stars: Diane D'Aquila
●●

Winds of Heaven is an earnest but only intermittently engaging documentary about the Canadian artist Emily Carr, an innovator of post-impressionism whose work was inspired by the indigenous peoples of the Pacific Northwest. The conceit of having Carr narrate her own story (in the voice of Diane D'Aquila) is meant to lend the material a sense of intimacy but unfortunately grows grating as the film wears on: the material might have been better suited to a shorter format.

5 Top boxing movies

Boxing movies always have plenty of champions: They inspire us to fight harder ourselves, overcome obstacles in our own lives, and to acquire killer biceps and abs.

Mark Wahlberg has always been known for those parts of his body, and they're on full display in The Fighter, a movie he's been training for and fighting to get made for four years. He stars as Micky Ward, a real-life boxer who was one of Wahlberg's favourites growing up in Massachusetts.

With The Fighter opening this weekend, here are five more boxing movies that pack an emotional punch.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Champ (1979)

I dare you to try even thinking about this movie without getting choked up — that's how powerful its conclusion is. Yes, it's a remake and yes, it's shamelessly tear-jerky, but man, is it effective. Jon Voight stars as an ex-boxer now working as a horse trainer while raising his worshipful young son (Ricky Schroder). He decides to try in earnest for a comeback when his socialite ex-wife (Faye Dunaway) shows up and threatens to tear father and son apart.

Girlfight (2000)

Before Swank in Million Dollar Baby, Michelle Rodriguez blazed a trail here as a determined teen from the Brooklyn projects who rebels against her father and insists she should train to be a boxer. A then-unknown Rodriguez burst onto the scene with her film debut, showing the sultry strength and intensity that would become her trademarks, and this tough little indie shared top honours that year at the Sundance Film Festival.

Raging Bull (1980)

Well, of course we have to include it. Greatest boxing movie ever? That's not too much of a stretch. What more can we say that hasn't already been said?

It's all so obvious. Robert De Niro famously transformed himself inside and out, packing on the muscle to play the volatile former middleweight champion Jake La Motta.

In gorgeous, intimate black-and-white with its haunting title sequence, this may just go down as Martin Scorsese's brutal masterpiece. It earned Academy Awards for De Niro (best actor) and for Thelma Schoonmaker's editing, but was criminally robbed of the best-picture prize, which went to Ordinary People.

Rocky (1976)

Again, from the what-more-can-we-say department. We went with the first Rocky here, tempting as it was to dredge up later installments featuring Mr. T and Dolph Lundgren, because it set the precedent for the franchise.

It was the little movie that could, the one that came out of nowhere with no budget and shocked the world by winning the best-picture Oscar over bigger and more traditional contenders: Network, All the President's Men, Bound for Glory and Taxi Driver.

Sylvester Stallone wrote the script and starred as the Italian Stallion, Rocky Balboa, a small-time boxer who would go on to win the heavyweight championship. As full of cheesy uplift as the ending is, it still sends chills.

Million Dollar Baby (2004)

Director and co-star Clint Eastwood has said this appealed to him because it was about a search for family, and indeed, the scenes he shares with Hilary Swank, who functions as a daughter figure in his life, provide the film's heart.

But as Maggie Fitzgerald, a young woman who comes from nothing, trains hard and turns herself into an unlikely champion, Swank also inspires all on her own. And the ending is just devastating, even if you know it's coming. The film earned Academy Awards for best picture, director, actress and supporting actor: Morgan Freeman as Eastwood's longtime friend and verbal sparring partner outside the ring.

Cheddar-Chive Gougères

PREP TIME: 25 MIN ➤ TOTAL TIME: 50 MIN ➤ MAKES: 17 SERVINGS

What You Need

1 cup water
1/4 cup butter
Dash cayenne pepper
1 cup flour
3 eggs
1 cup Kraft Old Cheddar Shredded Cheese
1/4 cup Kraft 100% Parmesan Grated Cheese
2 Tbsp. chopped fresh chives

Make it

HEAT oven to 400°F.

BRING water, butter and cayenne to boil in medium saucepan on medium heat, stirring frequently with wooden spoon. Add flour all at once; stir until well blended. Cook and stir 2 min. or until mixture forms ball. Cool 5 min.

ADD eggs, 1 at a time, stirring after each until well blended. Stir in remaining ingredients. Drop level tablespoonfuls of dough, about 2 inches apart, onto baking sheets sprayed with cooking spray.

BAKE 20 min. or until puffed and golden brown. Turn oven off. Leave gougères in oven 5 min. Serve warm.

I dreamed a dream of angels.
I saw them and heard them in a great and endless galactic night ...
A haunting new novel of angels and assassins that once again summons up dark and dangerous worlds set in times past.
"Thrilling ... divinely entertaining." —People

In her Hollywood, brunettes have the most fun

Modern Family bombshell Sofia Vergara started getting typecast when she dyed her naturally blonde locks, and she wouldn't have had it any other way

TIFFANY ROSE
METRO WORLD NEWS, HOLLYWOOD

When Columbian actress Sofia Vergara first arrived in Hollywood, she was told she wasn't Latin enough for roles.

"I am a natural blonde," she reveals. "I even have blonde eyelashes, and so I would go to auditions and they didn't know how to cast me because I had the strong accent; I had the attitude and I had the body but I was blonde."

They were comparing her to her Latino counterparts: Salma Hayek and Penelope Cruz, whose olive skin and brunette locks fitted the stereotypical Latina beauty.

"So I dyed my hair dark for a movie and I immediately started getting jobs because then I really became hot and Latin," she laughs.

All this changed when the now voluptuous 38-year-old landed a role in the 2003 independent film, Chasing Papi.

More movie roles followed, including Four Brothers opposite Mark Wahlberg and guest spots on Entourage and Dirty Sexy Money.

But it was her role as Gloria on the Fox sitcom Modern Family that propelled her to overnight stardom. Now in its second season and a certified global hit, Vergara is not afraid of being typecast.

Shaking her head, she smiles: "No, I'm not afraid of stereotypes because I portray a typical Latino woman who's voluptuous, loud, passionate and personally for me, I wouldn't want to be described in any other way. I don't want to be quiet with no ass and boring. I don't think there is anything wrong with that stereotype because it exists!"

Modern Family revolves around three families who are all interrelated through the family patriarch, Jay Pritchett (Ed O'Neill). Jay is married for the second time to the fiery Latina Gloria (Vergara), who is half his age and together they raise her son, Manny, from her previous marriage to Javier (played by guest star, Benjamin Bratt).

Vergara, who, like her character, is also a single mother, divulges that a lot of her life has been put into her character. "They created Gloria when they met me," she says.

"As a Latin mother I try to be very present for my son. My son is 19 and he's away at school, but I text him every 45 minutes."

She adds: "When I started acting he used to run lines with me for auditions, because he was the only one in my house. So, I would pay him five bucks to read with me. He would always correct me on my English and then I would immediately do it wrong and he would become really frustrated with me. He speaks perfect English."

This past Emmy season, Vergara was nominated for an Emmy for playing Gloria.

She quips: "The first thing I did when I got nominated was to rub it in my son's face. You see, I did it, even with the accent!"

Did you know?

- Sofia Vergara landed in showbiz by accident. After high school, she attended dental school to train to become a dentist in Columbia.

Actor had doubts about Lie to Me role

TIFFANY ROSE
METRO WORLD NEWS, HOLLYWOOD

When British actor Tim Roth, who's best known for his movie roles, was asked to star in the one hour TV drama Lie to Me, he immediately turned it down.

"I said no a couple of times and then I started taking it seriously," he recalls.

"I called around to a few actor friends, and they told me that a television job is seriously hard work and while a lot of them were dissatisfied as actors, they were happy with their bank balance."

He quickly adds: "From a creative standpoint, I was dissatisfied in the first season because I found it hard to adjust to the formula, but then I saw you could actually do something about that if you take it seriously. We gradually made a few changes in his behaviour and in the scripts and now I've grown to love this role."

and voice to expose the truth and lies in criminal investigations.

Roth plays Dr. Cal Lightman of the Lightman Group, who is the world's leading deception expert.

If you lie to Lightman, he'll see it in your face, your posture and hear it in your voice.

If you shrug your shoulder or even rotate your hand, he will spot the lie. He heads up a team of experts who assist federal law enforcement, government agencies and local police with the most difficult cases.

His co-star Kelli Williams (best known for The Practice) plays psychologist Dr. Gillian Foster.

Currently halfway through the third season, the 49-year-old actor must be doing something right!

CHRISTMAS ROCK 'N ROLL

Tired of Burl Ives' "Holly Jolly Christmas?" Find yourself screaming whenever you hear "Feliz Navidad" by Jose Felicano? Then maybe you need to adopt an entirely new Christmas playlist. Here's what's new for 2010.

"Christmas is Here" by Buckcherry: The result of a bluesy jam designed to come up with a Christmas song, this mid-tempo rocker is surprisingly festive.

"Christmas Lights" by Coldplay: Their last seasonal song was their version of "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas" on a tough-to-find 2002 compilation. This new original song sets things up for two U.K. gigs in aid of a British charity for the homeless called Crisis this Sunday and Monday.

"Santa Stole My Lady" by Fritz and the Tantrums: There's lots of buzz around this indie band with the huge soul influence. This track sounds like it could have been recorded at Berry Gordy's studio in Detroit in 1968.

▶ Coldplay's Chris Martin

"Boots" by The Killers: The band still might be on a break as singer Brandon Flowers works his solo record, but everyone came back together for the fifth annual recording of a Killers Christmas single. Proceeds from this year's track will go toward the Product Red campaign, which raises awareness about the scourge of AIDS in Africa.

"Peppermint Winter" by Owl City: Adam "Owl City" Young has had an eventful couple of years thanks to his Ocean Eyes album. He's decided to cap 2010 with a paean to his idealized winter wonderland.

All songs listed here are available now on iTunes.

Writing songs 'not the easiest thing:' Feist

As Leslie Feist begins crafting a new record, she says she doesn't feel burdened by any extra pressure due to the astonishing success of her 2007 breakthrough, The Reminder.

Feist — who says she'll record a new album this winter — says that her approach to songwriting hasn't changed a bit.

It's exactly as arduous and painstaking as ever.

"I feel the same as I always did, which is that every song feels like the last one I'll ever write," she told The Canadian Press in a recent telephone interview from Toronto.

"Because it's not the easiest thing in the world for me."

To illustrate the point, the affable pop songwriter — who releases an intimate new DVD documentary, Look at What the Light Did Now, on Tuesday — relates the story of her former roommate, prolific songwriter Dave Szigeti.

"I used to joke that he had a giant song vacuum, and he would suck all of the songs out of the air in the apartment and leave none for me, because he was writing so many songs," she said with a laugh.

She feels largely the same way about her former bandmate in By Divine Right, Jose Contreras, for whom songwriting seems "the most natural thing in the world, like he's dealing cards."

"I think there are some people in the world that it works for them," she says. "But for me, it's little fragments and little pieces and then they finally find each other, and then they kind of become songs like that.

"So it's been the same. It's always been this way."

In fact, Feist's new documentary lifts the curtain on the creative process behind The Reminder by focusing not only on the Grammy-nominated album's music — an eminently engaging collection of summery pop gems infectious enough to infiltrate the playlists of a stunningly diverse cross-section of music listeners — but also every other element that contributed to the album's success, including Feist's intricate stagecraft, attention-grabbing music videos and evocative cover art.

The film features interviews with choreographers, photographers, lighting designers, songwriters, music-video directors, producers, shadow show designers, visual artists and other musicians, as well as, of course, Feist. MEDIAVIEWER WIRE SOURCE

Get your game on

Farmed game birds will be on many menus for Christmas dinner this year as Canadians opt for something other than turkey

That partridge in a pear tree might well be on your plate for Christmas dinner this year.

Although it is not considered a huge surge in the game bird industry, many Canadians are opting for something new this holiday season.

"I see a growing demand for game birds especially at this time of year," says Elaine Atlin, owner of La Ferme Black River Game Farm in Pefferlaw, Ont., an importer and distributor of game, poultry and gourmet products.

Dave Meli, owner of the Healthy Butcher in Toronto, says many of the customers for farmed game birds, including pheasant, quail, squab and guinea fowl, partridge and goose, are immigrants.

"Asians are the largest demographic when it comes to game birds," he says. "Others who want to try them often balk at the price of $16 a pound for partridge as opposed to Cornish hens, which retail for $8."

Nevertheless, there is an appetite for game birds to be sure, says Leila Batten, owner of White House Meats at Toronto's St. Lawrence Market. Her firm specializes in a large selection of game birds.

The reason they are pricey is the processing costs charged to farmers, she says. "If you are processing hundreds of thousands, the cost is lower. But when you are looking at under 100 birds you know your costs are going to be higher."

All three agree that one of the most popular game birds is Cornish hens.

These miniature chickens weigh up to 1.2 kilograms. Because they have a relatively small amount of meat to bone, each hen is usually just enough for one serving. They are best broiled or roasted.

Meli says you can get twice as much meat on a Cornish hen at half the price of pheasant or partridge. "It all boils down to what you expect to pay."

Batten says she is seeing more interest in game birds for small dinner parties, especially couples entertaining in smaller-sized condos.

"People seem willing to spend a little extra and make something different," she says. "And game birds aren't difficult to cook."

One bird that is in vogue all year round is duck, says Atlin.

"It is the most popular of all the game birds," she says. "You will find duck in many grocery stores because it is in demand."

The different breeds of ducks include Peking, the smallest, the Muscovy, which is fairly large, and the mallard duck, a cross between a Muscovy and a Peking. All are under 4.5 kilograms.

Duck can be prepared in a variety of ways including roasting, braising and broiling.

Meli concurs on the popularity of duck. "I do fresh duck every week and I see that trend continuing, especially among my customers who want healthy meat. It is also locally farmed."

Guide to game

Here are some tips when purchasing farmed game birds such as pheasant, squab, guinea fowl, quail, partridge, duck and goose, among others.

- Farmed game birds are similar in many ways to chicken, so learning the various techniques for handling and cooking chicken teaches you a great deal about how to work with other birds.
- Game birds are versatile. You can cook them by broiling, roasting or using any of your other favourite methods or recipes.

Serving size

Here's how to gauge how many servings you can expect to get from each bird:

- 1 serving equals 2 quail, 1 to 2 squab, or 1 small duck.
- 2 servings equals 1 pheasant or 1 large duck.
- A large 2 to 2.75 kg (4 to 6 lb) goose should feed 4 to 6 people.

A tasty alternative to turkey

Because they are now raised domestically on farms, game birds, such as pheasants, duck and guinea fowl, are increasing in popularity. They can be found at specialty butchers, farmers markets and some supermarkets across Canada. Here is a recipe to try at a special dinner this holiday season using farmed pheasant.

Roasted Pheasants
Preparation:

1. Preheat oven to 220 C (425 F).
2. In a bowl, mix together mustard, paprika, salt, garlic and 125 ml (1/2 cup) of the butter to make a rub for pheasants.
3. Remove excess fat from cavities and necks of pheasants, then rinse and pat dry. Run your finger between skin and flesh of breast and legs of each hen to loosen skin (outside of thighs are easier to access from neck end).
4. Rub spice mix under skin and massage skin from outside to spread evenly over breast and legs. Season hens inside and out with salt and pepper and put half of herb stems in cavity of each bird.
5. Tie legs together with kitchen string and close cavity with toothpicks. Brush additional melted butter over birds, if desired.
6. Put pheasants in pan, breast sides up. Roast pheasants, basting every 10 minutes with a brush, until a thermometer inserted in thickest part of a thigh (without touching bone) registers 77 C (170 F), about 35 minutes.
7. Discard string and toothpicks from birds and transfer to a platter. Cover birds loosely to keep warm while making sauce.
8. In a skillet, melt remaining butter. Saute shallots until soft. Skim fat from pan juices and add with chicken broth to shallots. Deglaze by boiling, scraping up brown bits, until reduced to about 125 ml (1/2 cup). Add wine and continue boiling for 1 minute. Pour sauce through a sieve into a sauce boat and spoon over pheasants.
9. Chop additional herbs and scatter over pheasants. Makes 4 to 6 servings. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ingredients:

- 2 whole pheasants, each about 1 kg (2 lb)
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) Dijon honey mustard
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) smoked paprika
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) salt
- 2 garlic cloves, crushed
- 175 ml (3/4 cup) butter, divided
- 4 large sprigs each fresh thyme, fresh tarragon and fresh flat-leaf parsley, leaves and stems separated, plus extra for garnish
- 3 shallots, thinly sliced
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) low-sodium chicken stock
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) white wine

Superfood

Buckwheat is not a cereal grain but a fruit seed and it ranks low on the glycemic scale.

It contains more protein than rice, wheat, millet or corn and is high in the essential amino acids lysine and arginine.

It's gluten free, and its unique characteristics reduce and stabilize blood sugar levels after a meal, which is an essential health benefit for people suffering from diabetes and struggling with obesity.

The proteins found in buckwheat are also believed to help reduce hypertension. It is also rich in magnesium, which reduces feelings of anxiety.

NYC window shopping

Retail holiday windows range from high-tech to traditional in New York City's shopping district

Checking out store windows decorated for the holidays has become a Christmastime tradition for New Yorkers and tourists alike. Many of this year's windows use high-tech displays to showcase traditional stories and symbols of the season.

At Saks Fifth Avenue, at Fifth Avenue near 49th Street, digital projectors beam images of translucent white snowflakes and bubbles onto the store's facade. The images interact with the architecture in a magical two-and-a-half minute light show that takes place every 10 minutes from 5 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. nightly.

Macy's windows, on Broadway between 34th and 35th streets, are also a mix of high-tech media and traditional holiday themes, taking spectators on a journey through the eyes of eight-year-old Virginia O'Hanlon, who wrote to a newspaper in 1897 asking for proof of Santa Claus and got the famous response, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus."

"It has that old-fashioned feel, but there's a lot of technology in it as well."
PAUL OLSZEWSKI, MACY'S DIRECTOR OF WINDOWS

Each window hosts a mini-theatrical show with scene changes, lighting, video and voiceover. The animation consists of digital video of figures made from paper, and in each set, a small screen shows a scene within a scene.

Windows at Lord & Taylor, at Fifth Avenue near 38th Street, offer 12 mechanical tableaus illustrating Christmas scenes set in New York City, inspired by favourite memories that customers shared with the store.

The theme of the display is Share the Joy, and the displays include candy canes, wrapped gifts, snowy streets, snowmen, wreath-decked homes, Santa's sleigh with reindeer and decorated trees.

The windows at Bergdorf Goodman, at Fifth Avenue and 58th Street, were inspired by fantasy travel to farflung places and are titled Wish You Were Here. David Hoey, Bergdorf Goodman senior director of visual presentation and window design, describes the windows as a mash-up of unexpected arrivals and departures, drawing on influences as varied as Roman mythology and the movies.

In one scene featuring a mannequin in an Oscar de la Renta gown, an antique caboose pulls out of a station; in another, a ship rolls on the sea while a figure in a striped outfit keeps company with miniature sailors. A third window offers a glittery lunar dreamscape inspired by a 1902 science fiction silent movie, while the fourth features air travel by winged horses.

The windows at Henri Bendel, at Fifth Avenue and 56th Street, were inspired by The Nutcracker with a fun, high-fashion twist.

The New York City Ballet partnered with the store on the display, which shows a six-foot-tall female nutcracker and mannequins posed to look like ballerinas from the classic Christmas story. Inside the store, figures in tutus are suspended from the ceiling.

Finally, at Bloomingdale's, at 59th Street and Lexington Avenue, a mosaic of computer-generated animation on 100 digital screens depicts a dreamy winter landscape.

Give the gift of gaming

A handy guide for those who need a little help with the systems and gadgets out there this year

With two new motion controllers out this fall, video game companies are giving even the most hand-eye-coordination challenged of us a chance to find our inner gamer. And for those who already have, lower-priced console bundles and an experimental game streaming platform can be reason enough to get a second – or third – gaming system this holiday season.

Here's a handy rundown of what's out there, how much it costs and who might want it.

Kinect for the Xbox 360 from Microsoft Corp.

This is the futuristic motion controller from Microsoft Corp. It removes remotes entirely from the gaming experience. Kinect is basically a fancy camera that tracks your movements, hand gestures and voice. It can also recognize faces and scan in objects so you can use them in certain games. For now, two people can play simultaneously, though that will likely change as more games are developed. This holiday season, retailers are also bundling Kinect with a low-end version of the Xbox 360 at a discount.

Good for: Families with young kids and anyone averse to games with lots of buttons and complex controls. Also for Wii graduates or anyone who's been meaning to get a Wii all this time and never got around to it.

Not so good for: Dorm-bound college students and city dwellers in tiny apartments, as Kinect needs at least six feet – though more is better – between it and the players to work. Hardcore gamers could go either way, so best to check first.

Cost: $150 for the standalone Kinect camera system, or $300 for the Kinect with a four gigabyte Xbox 360. Both come with Kinect Adventures.

Must-have game: Dance Central ($50)

PlayStation Move from Sony Corp.

Sony says it had considered selling a controller-free controller a la Kinect but then thought better of it. Many games, it turns out, simply work better when holding a remote in your hand. Sony Corp's Move is that remote, at least if you are a PlayStation 3 fan. It blends motion controls pioneered by Nintendo Co's Wii with the complex but entirely useful controls of a traditional game controller.

Good for: Wii owners ready to move on to high-definition games and first-person shooters, though for now the bulk of Move games are limited to more "casual" titles. Families or roommates who want to play together or watch Blu-ray movies are also a good bet.

Not so good for: Xbox fanatics and hardcore gamers who want a pile of new titles to check out right away for Move might be disappointed with the selection.

Cost: $100 for a bundle that includes the PlayStation Eye camera, one Move controller and a game, Sports Champions. For $400 total, you get all that plus a 320 gigabyte PlayStation 3.

Nintendo Wii and accessories

To celebrate 25 years of Super Mario, Nintendo is selling a limited edition red version of the Wii this holiday season, which could make for a good gift for anyone on your list obsessed with this classic video game icon. The console comes with a red controller and two games – Wii Sports and Super Mario Bros. Wii – for the same price as a regular, white Wii system.

A great new accessory this year is the uDraw GameTablet from THQ Inc. It's essentially a mini art studio that lets players of all ages paint, doodle and colour using a small tablet and an attached stylus.

Good for: Kids, families ready to graduate from the now very old PlayStation 2 and little brothers and little sisters.

Not so good for: Hardcore gamers, tech-geeks.

Cost: $200 for the red Mario bundle, $40 for each additional remote plus $20 for a Nunchuck. The uDraw tablet is $70, with extra games such as Pictionary available for $30 each.

Must-have games: Epic Mickey ($50), Kirby's Epic Yarn ($50)

OnLive Micro-Console

This new game console is so small it could easily fit in a Christmas stocking, and at $99 it's almost cheap enough to stuff in there. Most likely you haven't heard of OnLive, a promising startup that has come up with a way to stream video games through an Internet connection, much like how Netflix shows movies online. The console plugs into players' TV sets and comes with a generic wireless controller for traditional shooter video games. Players can rent or buy video games to download, watch live game play by other gamers and upload perfectly played sessions called "brag clips" for others to admire.

Good for: Adventurous gamers with their eye on the next big thing. Budget-minded gamers who want to try before they buy. OnLive offers short-term game rentals for a fee.

Not so good for: Players into more casual games or the Wii; those averse with the traditional game controllers. Anyone with weak Internet service at home. Your broadband connection must be at least 3 megabits per second near your TV set, though 5 or more megabits are recommended. Cable modems will easily exceed this but some DSL subscribers could have problems.

Cost: $99 for the console. There is a Netflix-style "all-you-can-play" service for $10 per month, though the games available through it are older. Separately, games are available to rent for three or five days for about $5 to $9. Buying games for unlimited play costs the same as a traditional hard copy for a console or PC.

Must-have game: Assassin's Creed II ($30)

Holiday shopping for the folks

You're in the midst of holiday shopping season and you're almost done. But the few you have left you've been dreading — gifts for your parents. They haven't been very helpful either — all they've told you they want is grandchildren.

So, in lieu of grandkids, here are some great gift ideas for mom and dad to get you started.

Good for mom and dad

• A gift certificate to their favourite restaurant.

• A GPS device. Go for a model that is simple and easy to operate.

Good for dad

• A multi-tool. Dads like their gadgets; moms like gadgets that don't fill up two rooms in a house. Everyone wins.

• Game tickets to your dad's sports team of choice.

• A sampling pack from a local brewery. If you're the favourite son or daughter, you might complement this with a pack of steaks.

Good for mom

• A nice perfume. Even if she doesn't use it often, a nice luxury gift will make her feel special.

• A gift certificate to a day spa. She'll feel pampered, and she'll get away from having to hear about your dad's new multi-tool.

• A digital picture frame. Preload this with family photos, including some embarrassing child photos that she loves. Your feelings on the photos are irrelevant. NEWSCANADA

Tips for gift dropping hints

There's nothing worse than opening your gifts only to be disappointed that Santa didn't get you that something special you really wanted. The truth is, the "Santas" in your life may need a little help figuring out what will make you happiest this holiday season. Rather than blurting out that you're just dying to get your hands on that new tablet or digital camera, get creative and drop a few strategic hints to get what you want.

Draw attention to an online feature or TV commercial

Point out its features and make mention of how much it would really benefit you for work, school or play.

Next time you're in the mall, steer your shopping partners directly to the items you want

Looking at the latest computers and alluding to how frustrated you are with how slow yours has been lately or how much of an asset that new hardware component could be at school, work or play may do the trick.

Make a list and drop it on the sly

List the items you want, prioritize them by preference and conveniently leave the list out for everyone to see.

Send an email or text

Rather than being too direct, send a note to your best gift giver raving about your generous coworkers who are splurging on their significant others.

30 portions
Prep time: 60 min.
Cooking: 240 min.

For a standout dish, try this — your guests will be speechless

Ingredients:
- 1x25 pound turkey, deboned
- 1x5 pound duck, deboned
- 1x3 1/2 pound chicken, deboned
- 1 Italian truffle
- 1/2 cup smoked paprika (125 ml)
- 1/2 cup melted butter (125 ml)
- Salt and pepper
- Stuffing

Preparation:

1 Spread the turkey, skin down, on a flat surface, exposing as much meat as possible. Sprinkle the meat generously and evenly with a total of about 3 tablespoons of the smoked paprika, patting the seasoning in with your hands. (Be sure to turn the leg, thigh and wing meat to the outside so you can season it too.) Season with salt and pepper.

2 Stuff some stuffing in the leg, thigh and wing cavities until full but not tightly packed. (If too tightly packed, it may cause the leg and wing to burst open during cooking.)
Spread an even layer of stuffing over the remaining exposed meat, about 1/2 to 3/4 inches thick. You should use a total of about 4 cups of stuffing.

3 For the duck, remove some of the fat and keep aside. Place the duck, skin down, on top of stuffing, arranging the duck evenly over the stuffing. Season the exposed duck meat generously and evenly with smoked paprika, using about 1 tablespoon, and pressing it in with your hands. Season with salt and pepper.
Then spread about 1 cup of the stuffing evenly over the exposed duck meat, making the layer slightly less thick, about 1/2 inch thick. Repeat with the chicken and the remaining stuffing. Place an Italian truffle in the centre (optional).

4 With the assistance of your helper, carefully lift the open Turducken into an ungreased 15x11 baking pan that is at least 2-1/2 inches deep. (Note: this pan size is ideal because the Turducken fits snugly in the pan and stays in the proper shape while cooking.)

5 Enlist someone's help to close Turducken.
Fold the sides of the turkey together to close the bird. Have your helper hold the turkey closed while you sew up all the openings, making the stitches about 1 inch apart.
When you finish sewing up the Turducken on the first side, turn it over in the pan to sew closed any openings in the other side. Then tie the legs together, just above the tip bones.
Leave the Turducken to cook, breast side up, in the pan, tucking in the turkey wings.

6 Place the Turducken pan in a slightly larger pan with sides at least 2-1/2" deep, so that the larger pan will catch the overflow of drippings during cooking. Season the exposed side of the Turducken with the remaining smoked paprika, patting it in with your hands. Brush with melted butter.

7 Bake the Turducken at 325F (170C), about 4 hours, until done, or until a meat thermometer inserted through to the centre reads 165 °F. When done, remove the turducken from the oven and let rest for about 15 minutes.

Cookbooks fit to give everyone

Got an uncle who insists on hunting wild mushrooms or butchering his own steak? There's a cookbook for that. What about a working mom hoping to please picky palates during the daily dinner deadline? We have her covered, too. From DIY fanatics to busy families and even science geeks, this year's crop of cookbooks offers something for everyone.

FOR THE KIDS

For a book heavier on story than on cooking, check out Soup Day. On a blustery day, a little girl helps her mom select and chop vegetables for a warming winter soup. Idyllic and cosy with colourful, textured illustrations, the book also offers a perfect recipe for tiny hands.

FOR DEVOTED FOODIES WHO HAVE IT ALL

Molly O'Neill's One Big Table is a collection of 600 recipes that chronicle the diversity of American food. It features recipes taken from pit masters, farmers, home cooks and chefs around the United States.

The former Times food columnist includes recipes such as Farideh Khoury's muhammara, a Detroit mom's formula for the Syrian red pepper and walnut paste, and Mike DiMuccio's Rhode Island fried calamari, a plumber's pepper-spiked take on squid. With homey photos of some of her contributors, One Big Table is an album of America's rich culinary history.

FOR THE BAKER

Your sweet-tooth baker will appreciate Sweet Chic, a collection of confections by the owner of New York bakery Tribeca Treats. From easy homemade thin mints to multi-stepped masterpieces like sweet-and-salty cake (think devil's food with caramel and fleur de sel), the recipes in this book are great for a rainy day or a big celebration.

FOR DIY TYPES

Arranged by season for the freshest results, The Blue Chair Jam Cookbook contains more than 100 recipes for jams, preserves and marmalades. Winter brings marmalades of bergamot, pink grapefruit and Meyer lemons. Spring is time for rhubarb, strawberries, apricots and other eagerly anticipated fruits inventively combined into rosemary-scented marmalades, orange-blossom jams and good old solid preserves.

FOR CELEBRITY HOUNDS

Got a Food Network junkie in the family? Spark 'em up with Tyler Florence Family Meal, a guide to dinners that range from fast, kid-friendly pastas to feast-worthy roasts. Dishes such as angel hair with arugula take care of everyone on a Tuesday. But if you're gunning for Saturday night praise, a crown roast stuffed with apple and pecan dressing or a fish fry with sausage hushpuppies ought to do the trick. A well-rounded ode to gather-worthy fare with celeb flair.

GENERAL GOOD GIFT BOOKS

Don't force open a pressure cooker. And if you do, don't put your face over it. Do not think that Boston baked beans are a good addition to curry. And never, ever use garlic if you are cooking for the British. These are but a few of the tips offered by the stunningly amusing The How Not To Cookbook, an assemblage of advice from 1,000 cooks around the world. A good laugh — and perhaps a cautionary tale.

Music for their soul

Fill their stockings and ears with these great CD gifts

Michael Jackson Michael
$17.99 (available Dec. 14)
A full-length album featuring original material recorded before Michael Jackson's death, Michael is sure to be one of the most talked-about album releases this season. The first single, Breaking News, was streamed online last month and fans likely won't pass up the opportunity to hear some previously unreleased songs. Available at music retailers.

Michael Bublé Crazy Love Hollywood Edition
$16.99
A two-disc set that features the original Crazy Love and an eight-song Hollywood the Deluxe E.P. companion disc including four new studio recordings and four live takes from the 2010 Crazy Love Tour. Bublé is a particularly strong live singer so the live recordings alone make a solid buy for fans. Available at music retailers.

Florence and the Machine Lungs
$9.99
The 2009 debut album from Florence Welch is still one of the most intriguing, exciting listens around and features dark humour and a Tim Burton-esque artistic flair for the unusual. Full of fragility and dense beauty, it's an album that can draw a surprisingly wide net of listeners. Available at music retailers.

Rod Stewart Fly Me to the Moon ... The Great American Songbook Vol. V
$9.99
Rod Stewart shows off the lasting appeal of his voice with an album of America classic covers including Beyond the Sea, Moon River, I've Got You Under My Skin and, of course, Fly Me to the Moon. If your gift-receiver has ever owned a Rod Stewart album chances are they will be happy to get another, so for fans this is a solid bet. Available at music retailers. COMPILED BY RAF BRUSILOW

5 projects for the DIY gift-giver

Sometimes a new twist on an old idea is all it takes for a beautiful handmade gift to be born.

If you're inclined to make your own gifts this holiday season, read on for five ideas, all simple and fresh.

Silhouette on canvas

Haile McCollum of Thomasville, Ga., is her family's de facto genealogist, the keeper of heirlooms and ancestral silhouette portraits. She also has a background in graphic design, and has reinvented the silhouette with her own two sons — and the family dog, Amos — as subjects. Her idea is featured in Crafting a Meaningful Home (STC Craft/Melanie Falick Books, 2010).

McCollum simplified and updated the silhouette using modern technology; silhouettes are decoupaged onto a painted canvas rather than secreted behind frames.

To make the silhouette, paint a small oval-stretched canvas with acrylic paint and let dry. With a digital camera, take a profile photo — only a head shot – of the subject. Upload the photo to a computer and resize. Print the photo and carefully cut it out, getting as many details as possible. Secure this pattern onto a sheet of heavyweight paper and cut it to match. Adhere profile to canvas using decoupage glue; let it dry. Paint another thin layer of decoupage glue over the entire canvas.

McCollum recommends experimenting with paper and colour, perhaps putting a hot-pink silhouette onto a bright orange background, or putting brown on blue. Paper with a tight pattern may look good, too. Card stock works best for the silhouette, says McCollum, who owns a personalized stationery and gift company called Fontaine Maury.

The silhouettes needn't even be paper. For example, they can be cut out of fabric and sewn or glued onto pillow cases. "In our bedroom, we have our two sons on our two pillows on our bed. It's really cute," says McCollum.

Personalized pillow

Kim Johnson of Estero, Fla., is an illustrator and amateur photographer whose artistic canvas is the pillow. She sews her own out of a felt fabric made from recycled plastic bottles, and embellishes the pillows with the same soft felt.

The self-taught sewer says that working with felt is especially easy because the material doesn't fray. The felt at fabric stores will work, but Johnson uses higher-end wool felt and bamboo felt that she buys from the online dealer Feltorama.

In a hurry? Buy a good-looking pillow and embellish it with felt using fabric glue. For inspiration, check out Johnson's ideas at her Etsy online shop, photographik.

Paper photo pendant

If you've ever made your own cardboard photo frames, this idea is that in miniature, and on a ribbon.

Aubrey Avila of Marion, N.C., was trying to create a locket for her children's photos when she hit on this simple idea, tutorials for which she sells at her Etsy shop, Decelerate.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Silhouette on canvas

The craft goes something like this: Cut out a 7.5-by-4-cm (3-by-1-1/2-inch) square of thin cardboard (cereal boxes work well). Fold it in half. Cut an opening for the photo that measures 2.5-by-1-cm (1-by-1/2-inch) on one half side. Cover this with a heavyweight paper, such as card stock – something with a small, tight design. Fold the paper over the cardboard, making sure the edges are smooth; use hot glue to secure. At the photo opening, cut a small "x" and carefully peel back the paper, leaving a clean finish; glue edges down.

Wrap 20-gauge wire around the spine of the frame and make a loop at the top for inserting ribbon. Finally, glue the two sides of the frame together, leaving the bottom open for inserting a tiny image. Vellum can be inserted with the photo to protect it.

Avila says the fit is tight enough that the image won't fall out.

The pendant is perfect for holiday gift-giving, and it's easy enough for kids to make with a little parental guidance, she says.

"You want something that can be customized," says Avila. "I think that makes a gift more meaningful. That's the whole idea."

The techie sleeve

Architects-turned-crafting entrepreneurs Kim Mason and Christina Guerrero of Philadelphia teamed up last summer to create the Etsy online store Rogue Theory. They sell all kinds of colourful "sleeves" for protecting today's high-tech toys, from Kindles to iPods.

It's a colourful twist on a simple idea: The sleeves incorporate two pieces of cotton fabric, sewn right sides together, with a polyester interfacing that adds padding without bulk. The fabric then is folded and sewn up the sides to dimensions that allow for a snug techie-toy fit.

"The big thing is to keep it simple and sleek," says Mason. "It's a lot like designing a building. We think if the design is on point, you can put any fabric on it and personalize it for any person."

▶ Recycled sweater scarf

Recycled Sweater Scarf

Michele Beschen of Van Meter, Iowa, hosts "b. organic" on public television. She recently contributed several ideas for handmade gifts to HGTV.com's "Handmade Holidays," which ties into the cable network's one-hour special "15 Fresh Handmade Gift Ideas," which airs through December.

On the show and online, Beschen shares her infinity scarf, cut from a single sweater with minimal sewing.

"You can still give a knitted item without knowing how to knit," she says.

Use the knitted fabric of one sweater, or combine the colours and textures of several sweaters into one scarf, suggests Beschen, who uses acrylic or acrylic-blend sweaters because they keep their shape and drape well.

"Play with the colours, how the knits lay together," she advises.

Incorporate the sweater's other features, such as buttons or a pocket, into the scarf. When making a gift, Beschen advises using muted colours that can be incorporated into anyone's wardrobe.

To make the scarf: Using a single sweater, cut around it under the armholes, or according to desired width. Finish the cut edge by hand or machine stitching. Instructions for combining the fabric of two sweaters into one scarf are at HGTV.com/handmade.

Stocking up to contend

Blue Jays GM seeks more sustainable improvement than that of his free-spending rivals ◐ Focus on players with potential to become stars

TONY BOCK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ General manager Alex Anthopoulos has a strategy of stocking all levels of the system with high-ceiling talent.

As the familiar high-stakes manoeuvring by the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees played out at this week's winter meetings, the Toronto Blue Jays stayed true to their vision for building a winner.

General manager Alex Anthopoulos left Lake Buena Vista, Fla., having pulled off only one move at baseball's annual swap meet, picking up Canadian infield prospect Brett Lawrie in a trade with Milwaukee for starter Shaun Marcum.

It was a deal that drew mixed reviews from fans, who were split over the decision to give up an established and solid pitcher for a 20-year-old big on potential but short on track record.

Yet the trade, the 14th pulled off by Anthopoulos in just more than 14 months on the job, underlines the organizational philosophy the Montrealer believes will propel his club past its more flamboyant rivals.

Lawrie is the sixth former first-round pick Anthopoulos has added via trade, to go along with four second rounders, fitting into his grander strategy of stocking all levels of the system with high-ceiling talent.

By doing so, he believes he can turn the Blue Jays into a sustainable winner, a team able to field all-stars all over the diamond and fill holes by either promoting from within, or using prospects as trade chips to bolster the big-league club.

A reminder of how tough a challenge that is was provided by the Red Sox, who picked up slugger Adrian Gonzalez and reached an agreement with Carl Crawford, and the Yankees, who laid the groundwork for a deal with Cliff Lee.

Anthopoulos believes free agents are best used to put contending teams over the top. Right now the Blue Jays are in the talent-acquisition mode, and trades have been one of his most effective avenues in accomplishing that.

Lawrie fits right into the mould, and his addition is the latest example of Anthopoulos's persistence in trying to obtain a player he likes.

Anthopoulos began calling Brewers counterpart and fellow Canadian Doug Melvin about Lawrie shortly after he started on the job and didn't let up until a deal was struck.

"He was pretty persistent," Melvin said after the trade's announcement. "With Alex, there's a lot of phone calls."

Anthopoulos has also been creative in trades, with one of his most intriguing deals being the Nov. 4 acquisition of catcher Miguel Olivo from the Colorado Rockies for a player to be named later or cash.

The Blue Jays immediately declined Olivo's $2.5-million option US for 2011, offered him arbitration and are set to obtain a compensatory draft pick if his preliminary agreement with Seattle is finalized. In essence, the deal allowed Anthopoulos to buy a pick, something that others may copy down the road.

Alex in action

How the Jays landed Anthony Gose.

- Kyle Drabek and Travis d'Arnaud, along with Michael Taylor, were all picked up in Anthopoulos's first trade, with the Philadelphia Phillies last Dec. 16 for ace Roy Halladay.
- Taylor was flipped to Oakland for Brett Wallace that same day, and he was subsequently sent to Houston for Gose, whom Anthopoulos wanted all along.
- To get Gose, Anthopoulos horned in on Philadelphia's talks with the Astros over the summer for Roy Oswalt, and once Gose was packaged to Houston for the ace right-hander, Anthopoulos pounced to get his man.

Flyers bury Leafs early

| FLYERS | LEAFS |
|---|---|
| 4 | 1 |

The Toronto Maple Leafs dug themselves another hole that was too big to climb out of, spotting the Philadelphia Flyers the first three goals during a 4-1 loss Thursday.

Danny Briere scored twice for the Flyers to improve his team-leading total to 16 on the season.

It was the third straight game the Leafs fell behind by three goals and the second straight night they failed to mount a comeback. Toronto has surrendered the first goal in five straight games.

Ville Leino and Chris Pronger also scored for Philadelphia (18-7-5).

Mikhail Grabovski replied for the Maple Leafs (10-14-4), scoring his third goal in as many games.

The team failed to respond for frustrated coach Ron Wilson, who blasted his players for their effort following a 5-2 loss in Pittsburgh a night earlier.

The return of captain Dion Phaneuf also didn't have much impact — although he forced a turnover and earned an assist on Grabovski's goal.

There won't be any changes coming soon. Assistant GM Dave Nonis held a meeting with the players last week to tell them improvement has to come from within and GM Brian Burke's personal holiday trade freeze kicks in Friday. It won't be lifted until Dec. 28.

Even though Toronto fell behind once again, the team had plenty of quality scoring chances. Colby Armstrong was denied on a point blank opportunity, Francois Beauchemin failed to lift the puck into the empty net from the edge of the crease and Kris Versteeg rang a shot off the post on a 2-on-1 early in the second period.

By then, it was already 2-0 for the visitors.

Red Sox reel in another big catch

Boston adds two 'impact' players in Crawford and Gonzalez at baseball winter meetings ◗ Yankees increase their offer to Lee

All about Carl

More about the Red Sox' latest addition.

- The speedy Crawford is a four-time all-star and just won his first Gold Glove.
- He hit .307 with 19 home runs, an AL-leading 13 triples and 90 RBIs for Tampa Bay last season. He scored 110 runs and stole 47 bases.
- A dynamic player at 29, he has spent his entire major league career with the Rays.
- He is Tampa Bay's franchise leader in several categories, including hits, RBIs, runs and steals.

A night after Carl Crawford enjoyed a steak dinner with the New York Yankees, he served up a meaty surprise: He is going to play for the rival Boston Red Sox.

The Red Sox struck again at these winter meetings, reaching agreement late Wednesday with the star left-fielder on a $142-million US, seven-year contract.

Boston general manager Theo Epstein wouldn't directly confirm the move Thursday.

"If things come together the way we hope and expect, we'll be really satisfied," he said.

Predictably, the Yankees quickly raised the stakes for their No. 1 target, increasing their offer to prize pitcher Cliff Lee to a seven-year contract. That's up from a six-year proposal worth nearly $140 million.

"He's a premier free agent," Yankees general manager Brian Cashman said. "He's worth waiting for."

A person familiar with the Crawford deal told The Associated Press the agreement was subject to him passing a physical. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the deal was not yet finalized.

On Monday, the Red Sox announced they had acquired slugging first baseman Adrian Gonzalez in a trade with San Diego.

"You go into every winter with a Plan A, and sometimes it's hard to pull that off and you move on to Plan B and C," Epstein said. "I think adding an impact player was very important for where we were in the short, medium and long term and adding two, as long as they were the right players in the right spots in the right situations, would be even better."

Boston's big deals came after the Red Sox failed to make the playoffs and ratcheted up pressure on the Yankees to make a splash.

"They're loading up like they always do," Cashman said. "This is more significant."

A person with knowledge of the negotiations told the AP about the increased offer to Lee, without disclosing the dollar amount.

St-Pierre has choice words for opponent

Ready to fight in his hometown of Montreal, UFC welterweight champion will take on Koscheck

Georges St-Pierre let the cool facade slip Thursday, revealing a rare glimpse of what he truly thinks about challenger Josh Koscheck.

The UFC welterweight champion has ignored Koscheck's jibes and trash-talking ahead of UFC 124.

But as the pre-fight news conference ended Thursday at a Bell Centre restaurant, the 29-year-old from Montreal made his feelings known.

Having defeated Koscheck already at UFC 74 in August 2007, St-Pierre said a second win would knock the brash American well down the 170-pound ladder.

And he made it clear that out of sight would be out of mind.

"So I'm going to beat him Saturday night and it's going to be the end of it," St-Pierre said forcefully. "I'm not going to talk about him for a long, long time and I'm going to feel very happy."

St-Pierre's forceful words were followed by silence, before Koscheck tried for the last word.

"You like me that much?" he said in a comeback that fizzled.

St-Pierre (20-2) usually keeps his emotions in check, a practice that was tested by Koscheck during six weeks of filming of The Ultimate Fighter when the two served as rival coaches on the reality TV show.

Koscheck (17-4) continues to insist he has got inside St-Pierre's head.

"Yeah, I think I have. And I think that Georges has a lot of pressure coming into this fight," he said.

"He loses to a guy that talked a lot of trash, a guy that isn't very well liked around here. So there's a lot of pressure on him to come out and put me away."

JON KOPALOFF/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Georges St-Pierre

St-Pierre, dressed in a stylish suit, dismissed the suggestion that fighting in his hometown was more of a hindrance than help.

"Wherever the fight is, it's always the same octagon, the same thing. The only thing that has changed is my opponent," he said.

"I'm at my best when I'm under pressure and I can't wait for Saturday night."
GEORGES ST-PIERRE

"Of course in Montreal it's going to be something special for me but I'm ready to do it."

UFC president Dana White warned fans not to write off the 33-year-old Koscheck.

"I think people aren't giving Josh Koscheck enough credit for this fight. I think this fight's going to be a war on Saturday night with 23,000-plus people who hate him and 23,000-plus people who love Georges St-Pierre.

"The atmosphere's going to be insane here on Saturday night."

Lemon had torn ligament

Toronto Argonauts quarterback Cleo Lemon finished the CFL season with a torn ligament in his pinky finger, the team said Thursday.

Lemon was injured Sept. 11 at B.C., but it's not clear if that's when the tear occurred. He played through pain for the rest of the season.

RACING RIVALS AND ALPINE ALLIES

Field of Play

SCOTT RUSSELL

Sometimes it's hard to separate sport from entertainment.

When does competition end and showmanship begin? It's hard to decipher. Until you get to Lake Louise, deep in the heart of the Canadian Rockies, and appreciate what alpine skiers do. You peek out over the pitch of the ice-injected mountain and listen to an Olympic champion coax you down without killing yourself.

"You have the athletic ability," Kerrin Lee-Gartner says. "The only thing holding you back is fear. Get over it!"

You turn your skies and slip-slide over a treacherous section of the course known as "Fall Away." Remaining intact, picking up speed, you feel the exhilaration of crossing the finish line at what seems like 100 miles per hour. In fact, you're moving at a fraction of the speed the real racers do. Lee-Gartner is there at the bottom to offer a high-five.

"Now you have real credibility to talk about this race," she smiles.

Lindsey Vonn, the miraculous competitor from the United States, roars over the crest of the hill. She loses her balance and heads for disaster. Vonn slides onto her hip and careens in a wild skid until somehow she rights herself in the blink of an eye and recovers to take the lead.

Maria Riesch of Germany, Vonn's major rival, screams down the course to beat her by 10-one-hundredths of a second. Had Vonn not slipped she would have won handily.

"I hate to lose," Vonn says from behind her mirrored sunglasses. "But if I have to lose then it might as well be to my best friend." The two embrace and, standing side-by-side, do an interview in German, which is broadcast live on Austrian television.

Then, at the airport there's American Julia Mancuso, the third-place finisher in the Super G, lugging the voluminous luggage of Great Britain's Chemmy Alcott. Alcott is in a wheelchair with a broken leg after a horrifying crash in training, which had her airlifted off the mountain at the end of a rope dangling from a helicopter.

ALEXIS BOICHARD/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Lindsey Vonn

The two comrades have fashioned a competitive understanding.

They're off to Europe where the World Cup will continue for all but Alcott, who is done for the season. As they exit you come to understand that what you've witnessed is real sport indeed.

Where there is room for bitter rivals to be best friends.

Veteran Heil surprises herself

It came as a big surprise for two-time Olympic medallist Jenn Heil to learn something new this summer that made her a better skier.

Heil hopes this "big breakthrough" will lead to a podium performance when the World Cup freestyle skiing season opens Saturday with a moguls event at Ruka, Finland.

"It shocks me this late in my career to still be having big improvements in an area that was already my strength," Heil, 27, told The Canadian Press in a telephone interview from Finland's biggest ski resort.

"It's incredibly surprising. But that's what is so beautiful about sport."

Olympic gold medallist Alex Bilodeau is also thrilled to be back on a mountain. It was a whirlwind summer for the 23-year-old from Montreal after he became the first Canadian to win Olympic gold on home soil during the Vancouver Winter Games. "The only place I find myself the old Alex is on a hill or in the gym," said Bilodeau. "For me, I'm really excited to be on my skis." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 A plan of some kind may come unstuck but don't blame it on those around you. As Mercury, planet of communication and the mind, begins its retrograde phase setbacks of one kind or another are to be expected.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 You may want to confide in a friend or colleague today but is that wise? Can they be trusted with sensitive information?

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Stop counting your losses and start counting your blessings. It may be easy to wallow in self-pity but if you make an effort to look on the bright side today you will quickly realize just how fortunate you are

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Chances are you will fall out with a loved one or someone in a position of power over the next 24 hours. But that's okay. Every now and again you have to have these quarrels to clear the air.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 The reason why something that worked well for you in the past now seems to be going wrong is because you made changes that were not needed.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Your opinions could get you into trouble today, especially if what you say offends people in positions of power. Will that warning stop you? Most likely not. With Mercury, your ruler, turning retrograde you just can't help yourself.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You may see plots and conspiracies wherever you look but do so many people really have it in for you, or is your imagination playing tricks on you? It's the latter, of course

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Your task today is to do whatever it takes to put the smiles back on the faces of friends and relatives who seem to be a bit depressed.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 You may be tempted to give up on a plan that isn't making much headway but don't be too hasty. Over the next few weeks, while Mercury is retrograde, you are advised to leave it alone for a bit – but don't abandon it altogether.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Don't get into a situation where you have to commit yourself to something that you may not want to be associated with in the long-term.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You will be prone to negative thoughts today, not because anything bad is happening but because your mind is looking for reasons to highlight what's going wrong rather than what's going right.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Compromise is out of the question today.
